MYSTERIOUS MARY OF DOW REVELS IS IDENTIFIED

REPORT GIRL FIGURED IN FIRST PRESTON DEATH INQUIRY

The identity of the mysterious "Mary" from Somerville" in the new investigation of the Preston murder is known.

She is a girl who figured in previous investigation of the shooting of the Wakefield policeman last year.

The fact that the identity of this Somerville "Mary" has been established became known today through statement of George Stanley Harvey. He has just been retained as counsel by Mr. and Mrs. Dennis O'Leary of No. 140 Myrtle street, Melrose.

Following a conference with the O'Leary family and others Attorney Harvey said to the Boston American:

ATTORNEY'S STATEMENT.

"Public sentiment and decency demand that the murder of Patrolman James Arthur Preston of Wakefield be cleared up, if it is possible to do so. New evidence has come to our attention. The assault committed on Mrs. Mary O'Leary Raab at the Dow home in Melrose is only a minor phase of our investigation. You may state also that the identity of the mysterious young woman named 'Mary' from Somerville has been established."

Mrs. Raab was attacked during a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl P. Dow of Melrose. Mr. Harvey, discussing the case, continued:

"Complaints could be sworn out for assault and battery and offenders arrested, but just now we are far more concerned in solving the murder mystery.

"STILL BEARS MARKS."

"There is not the least question that Mrs. Raab was not only beaten, but seriously assaulted. She still bears the marks. She was kicked in the small of the back. A bruise there proves it. Her shoulder is marked and her knee was injured. These are physical evidences.

"It is not true that Mrs. Raab was 'planted' in the Dow home of anywhere else. She was not engaged by anybody to fill the role of private detective. That rumor is absurd. She met the group in a social way. There is no doubt that Mrs. Raab was roughly handled."

The O'Leary family is now represented by three lawyers. Besides Mr. Harvey, they are Robert E. Harding and William H. Powers, Jr., of Somerville.

Entry of Mr. Harvey into the case gives promise of action, according to predictions today in police and court circles.

Mr. Harvey was first assistant district attorney for Middlesex County under the regime of Nathan A.

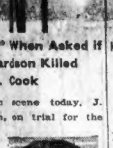
GETTIGAN ACCUSES AUNT

Shouts "Yes!" When Asked If Mrs. Richardson Killed Mrs. Cook

In a dramatic scene today, J. Thomas Gettigan, on trial for the murder of his aunt, Mrs. Lizzie M. Cook of Revere, accused another aunt, Mrs. Tessie F. Richardson, of the killing.

An autopsy revealed that Mrs. Cook came to her death as the result of arsenic poisoning. In a cross examination of Gettigan today, Assistant Attorney Caro established that there were four persons present when Mrs. Cook died. They were Gettigan and his wife, Miss Agnes Riley, a friend of Mrs. Cook, and Mrs. Richardson.



J. Thomas Gettigan

"Did your wife kill Mrs. Cook?" demanded Caro.

"No!" said Gettigan.

"Did her good friend, Miss Riley, kill her?"

"No."

"And of course you didn't kill her?"

"No."

"That eliminates three of the four people who were present at the time," he insisted Caro. "Only Mrs. Richardson is left. Are you of the opinion that she killed Mrs. Cook?"

"Yes!" shouted Gettigan.

BRIBERY IN HALL CASE PROBE

Mrs. Gibson, Eyewitness, Says Effort Was Made to Win Her Over to Defense

By International News Service.

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 1.—An alleged attempt to bribe Mrs. Jane Gibson, self-styled eye-witness to the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, to keep silent is under investigation.

Mrs. Hall, who has maintained strict silence since the double slaying and whose only utterances have been made through her attorney, Timothy N. Pfeiffer, was expected today to receive newspapermen at the rectory and permit them to question her at will.

The name of a private detective is mentioned in connection with the bribery investigation.

According to an accepted version of the report this man went to Mrs. Gibson's farm last Thursday, after her affidavit had become public, and said:

"You had better keep your mouth shut. You can make more by dealing with people for the defence."

SPURNS OFFERED BRIBE.

Mrs. Gibson met the "feeler" with such a blaze of defiance that the man left hurriedly, after saying: "You will hear from me later."

Mrs. Gibson the next day notified Prosecutor Strickler.

Mrs. Gibson's description left little doubt in the minds of the officials as to the identity of the man and it was determined to summons and grill him.

Accordingly an attorney who has taken some interest in the case was communicated with. He is said to have admitted that the man was in his employ and ordered to "produce" the detective for interrogation. It was arranged to have the man appear last Saturday.

Mason invited the caller to be seated and after a few preliminaries opened upon him with Mrs. Gibson's story.

After outlining the widow's description of her "annoyer," Mason suddenly turned to the detective and said:

"I believe you are the man. Mrs. Gibson doesn't know you, but her description fits you very closely. She even described your derby hat."

The detective jolted back and laughed.

"You are all wrong. I am not the

ABSENT AS CASES COME UP

Francis and Teresa Duggan Also Fail to Appear at Blackmail Trial

Three of the members of the alleged Boston blackmail ring failed to appear when the case was called today before Judge Bishop in the second term of the Superior Criminal Court.

They were:

William J. Corcoran, well known attorney and former district attorney of Middlesex county, and Francis Duggan and his wife, Theresa, the latter charged with being used as a lure by the gang in various exploits of blackmailing.

W. J. Corcoran

In one indictment Corcoran is charged with conspiracy involving women. In another he is charged, with other defendants, with having extorted money from Max Korn and Kenneth Morrill. It is charged that this money was taken following threats to expose these two men for alleged criminal relations with Theresa Duggan and one Peggy Partridge.

Another indictment charges a conspiracy to threaten James J. Donovan and one Curtis along similar lines. Corcoran is charged also with stealing $15,000 from Curtis and $18,000 from Donovan, following threats to expose them for their alleged relations with the two women.

M. J. Lyons

The surety put up by bondsmen for the three defendants who failed to appear will be forfeited. Walter E. Goodrich and William H Goodrich put up $10,000 bond for Corcoran and John L. Mitchell and John J. Murphy $5,000 each for the Duggans.

SOME APPEAR.

These defendants appeared in the courtroom today:

Leo Corcoran, an attorney who is a brother of William; Harry E. Levenson, J. Warren Kane, Theodore Bearse and Michael Lyons. Lyons and Kane are lawyers' runners.

Leo Corcoran, Levenson and Kane are named defendants in the indictment charging conspiracy involving women. Lyons, Bearse and the Duggans are named in the indictment mentioning the alleged swindle on Korn and Merrill. Levensen is named defendant in the indictment charging theft from Donovan and Curyis. Lyons and Bearse are charged with conspiracy in securing women to carry out the alleged schemes of extortion. Duggan and his wife are charged with being lures in the plots to place the various victims in compromising positions.

When the trial was called today William J. Patron appeared as attorney for Leo Corcoran and Bearse; Joseph Walsh and John Crehan for Lyons; Herbert Callahan for Kane and James Cassidy for Levenson.

Assistant Attorney-General Albert Hurwitz requested that the date for trial be set for November 15, or after the Ponz. trial. This was ordered by Judge Bishop despite objections by Attorney Walsh, who complained that the defendants and their lawyers had been led to assume the trial would begin today.

Teresa Duggan

It is thought that one of the reasons for the requested postponement is to give the State a chance to locate the three missing defendants. There is a rumor that Corcoran is in a Middle Western city. His wife claims she does not know where he is.

There is no penalty for defaulting a case as far as the defendant is concerned.

In the case of a felony—and the charges against Mr. Corcoran include many alleged felonies — sentence cannot be imposed in the absence of the defendant. If a defaulting defendant is brought back he may be placed on trial in the regular course of proceedings.

A man charged with the offences alleged against Corcoran can be extradited from any State and from most foreign countries. Mr. Corcoran's bond had been set at $10,000, which was furnished by professional bondsmen from another city. When arraigned he had pleaded not guilty.

He left Boston in August, 1921, shortly after the Tufts trial, at which he was a witness. When disbarment proceedings were instituted against him he filed a disclaimer and resignation from the bar, claiming he was no longer a resident of Massachusetts.

His claim was not denied, but the disbarment proceedings have not yet been tried.

PROTESTS BAN UPON LA FOLLETTE SPEECH

Madison, Wis., Nov. 1.—Governor Blaine today sent a telegram to Governor Preuss of Minnesota, protesting against the denial of the use of the hippodrome at the Minnesota State Fair grounds to Senator Robert M. LaFollette for a speech. Senator LaFollette is in Minneapolis today.

"I wish to express to you the great regret of the people of Wisconsin that the authorities of your State have seen fit to deny a United States Senator from this State the right to speak in a public building there on the ground that his political views may differ from those of said public officials," the telegram said.

TELL LANDLORD THEY'LL PAY AS THEY PLEASE

Enraged because of an adverse decision of the City Rent and Housing Commission, Samuel Shulman, apartment house owner, decided to punish his tenants today.

He has been in the habit of permitting the twenty-three families who live in his houses at No. 310 Warren street and No. 6 Colon street, Brighton, to pay their rents by check and whenever they felt agreeable to paying it.

Today he appeared and insisted on the payment of rent at once, when it was due, and in cash. Fortified by advice of counsel the tenants gave him a unanimous raz. They informed him they would pay in a day or so, and by check or money order if they so desired.

Shulman raised rents from $3 to $10 monthly. The tenants signed a protest petition and presented it to the city commission, which, after hearing both sides, ruled that the matter be held in abeyance pending receipt of expenditures made by Shulman.

FASCISTI AND SERBS IN BATTLE

Belgrade, Nov. 1 (By International News Service)—Fighting between Italian Fascisti and Serbians has broken out upon the frontier near Sushak, according to word received here today.

The coup by which the Fascisti seized power in Italy has caused considerable nervousness in Jugo-Slavia.

It was reported fighting on the frontier was becoming more and more serious and that there had been a number of casualties on both sides. The Serbians were reported to be preparing to mobilize in the western provinces.

Ambassador Picci Resigns U. S. Post

Rome, Nov. 1 (By the Associated Press).—Vittorio Rolandi Ricci, Italian ambassador at Washington, has presented his resignation, like his colleagues, Count Sporza, ambassador at Paris, and Senator Frassati, ambassador at Berlin, wishing to leave Premier Mussolini free to choose his own trusted men for such important posts.

It developed today that Premier Mussolini had sent a reply to the letter of resignation from Count Sforza, which was received yesterday, reproaching him for his action and asking him to remain at his post.

Minister of Industry Rossi, in agreement with the Minister of the Treasury, has taken steps for the immediate reopening of the Houses, it was semi-officially announced.

Mussolini Pledges Faith to Allies

Rome, Nov. 1. (By International News Service)—Premier Benito Mussolini, head of the new Fascisti government, today sent messages to the heads of the American, French and British Cabinets that he intends "to rule in accordance with international usage, and will do his utmost to maintain the entents among the allied powers."

After receiving in audience the Minister of Jugo-Slavia, Premier Mussolini said he was hopeful that the border situation would be cleared up quickly in a manner satisfactory to both countries.

Bulgars Demand Aegean Seaport

Sofia, Nov. 1 (By the Associated Press).—Premier Stambouliskv of Bulgaria will leave here Friday to confer by arrangement with the Rumanian Cabinet at Bucharest and later with the Jugoslav government at Belgrade. He will ask both countries not to oppose the autonomy of Thrace or Bulgaria's efforts to obtain an outlet across Thrace to the Aegean Sea.

Turks Desire Only Peace, Says Ismet

Constantinople, Nov. 1 (By the Associated Press).—Ismet Pasha delivered his first political speech as Foreign Minister to the National Assembly yesterday, declaring the Nationalists desired peace and that their representatives at Lausanne, of which Ismet will be one, would work sincerely to obtain it.

ELECTRIC CAR RUNS WILD IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, Nov. 1.—Crowded to the doors with panic-stricken men and women, a heavy electric car ran wild through one of the main streets of Providence today, after a collision with an auto truck, in which the controller of the car was put out of commission.

But for the quick work of a motorman who was riding in the car, as a passenger, the runaway would have plunged into hundreds of pedestrians and machines that virtually blocked the street, less than 200 feet from where the car was finally brought to a halt.

The truck was set on fire and demolished.

With the impact on Promenade street, which shattered the front of the street car, the controller broke. The car quickly picked up speed on the down-grade and thundered along, under the railroad station, through the tunnel and up to Exchange place.

Motorman Thomas Clarke of Providence was riding as a passenger. He fought his way through the terror-stricken passengers, to the rear platform.

The car was now going at express speed. Clarke put all his strength into the handbrakes and brought the car to a halt.

Police officers assisted the passengers out. Several were suffering from lacerations and bruises, caused by flying glass.

Among those injured were Mrs. Thomas Capauno, Maria Degnan, Grace Mitchell, George Mitchell, aged two and one-half; Margaret Truesdell, Dorothy Truesdell and Edwin Bradshaw, all of Providence.

BELIEVE PROVIDENCE MAN MURDER VICTIM

Providence, Nov. 1. — Following two days of investigation the police stated today that they believe that the man found murdered apparently by the black hand, at Cider Mill Pond, Cambridge, on Sunday, is Bruno Montagna of No. 32 Morefield street, Providence. Last Saturday Montagna entered police headquarters and reported that his wife had disappeared. He asked aid in finding her. The man said he thought his wife was in Boston and that he was going to that city.

The description of the murdered man tallied with that of Montagna. Police have learned that the weapon used in the murder was purchased in Providence, but the purchaser is unknown.

IDENTIFY MARY AT REVELS IN DOW HOME

Tufts, who investigated the Preston murder.

Attorneys Harvey and Powers today refused to make known the identity of the "Mary of Somerville," or the other young woman and the two young men who were among the guests at the Saturday night revel at the home of the Dows. They simply say they knew who the girl "Mary" is.

The cause of the row which resulted in the injuries of Mrs Raab, it is now known, was a woman's jealousy, due to the attention shown by her husband and other male guests to the vivacious Mrs. Raab, at the party Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl P. Dow, No. 25 Rowe street, Melrose.

It was reported today that the authorities planned to interview Mary Gibson, one of the several young women called as witnesses when the case of Clarence W. Loud, Melrose shoe salesman and dealer in antiques, was presented to the Grand Jury. Mary Gibson lodged on Hartmouth street at the time. The police interrogated her as to a report that she had been riding with Loud on the night Preston was slain. This she denied.

The mysterious Somerville bride known as "Mary," tall and dark and fashionably attired, resented the popularity of Mrs. Raab, who, after being sought as dancing partner by every man present, wound up by luring them into the parlor, where she staged impromptu theatricals, with herself as the star performer.

INCITES ATTACK.

The brunette Mary from Somerville was so enraged at the blonde Mary from Melrose, whom all present supposed to be the wealthy and talented "Mary Gordon from the South," that she incited one other woman to join in an attack on Mrs. Raab, which was made more vicious by the cocktails they both had imbibed.

And while the names of guests and the intimate details of the party are cropping out, there has been a hectic scattering of persons whose names are linked with the affair.

Mrs. Kate Dow has gone to relatives in Epping, N. H., until the flutter has subsided. Mrs. Raab, unnerved by the ordeal, the hurricane of publicity and the pursuit of interviewers, was making hurried plans today to leave the State, temporarily in order to find peace.

"It has simply become unbearable," said she with a stamp of her foot. "My friends have shunned me. Even my office associates whom I am employed acted differently. When I got home Monday night I felt like committing suicide I was so worn out and depressed.

"Why can't they let me alone now? I have told my story to District Attorney Saltonstall. A stenographer took every word of it. I told my story against my will. I am not an informer. I was forced to make a statement. There were many things that I kept back for weeks.

"But that woman from Somerville wanted them to do away with me. When I awoke from my stupor I was wrapped in a bath rug. I heard the woman from Somerville say that I knew too much and that they must get rid of me.

HAD JOLLY TIMES.

"We had jolly times at the Dow's and some other homes and at the Melrose Gold Club. We had Saturday night suppers at the Gold Club. The same crowds met. They all knew me as Mary Gordon, and not as Mary O'Leary or Mary Raab. Gordon was my stage name. I made a tour with a stock company, playing in "The Wolf," "Paid in Full" and two or three other shows.

fellow," he said.

"We believe you are," Mason shot back. "In fact, I accuse you of being the man who went out and told this woman that she had better keep her mouth shut."

The detective continued to protest and a spirited argument followed.

MONEY BEHIND PLOT.

Mrs. Gibson declared today that "money and influence" are behind the attempt to discredit her story.

"They are trying to protect the woman I named as the accomplice of the murderer," she said. "The people who are attacking me want money and influence and the persons they want to protect have money and influence."

It was thought likely today that Special Prosecutor Moti will lay the case before the Somerset County Grand Jury on Friday. Mrs. Gibson's story, it is believed, will supply the main ground upon which Moti is expected to seek indictments.

Mrs. Gibson, it was understood, is to be confronted with three men and asked to point out the one she believes to be the slayer.

PONZI'S FIRST AGENT HEARD AT TRIAL

That most persons who invested money with Charles Ponzi did so because of the promise of 50 per cent. in 90 days was the outstanding testimony in the Ponzi trial in the Superior Court today.

Ettori Giberti, the first agent hired by Ponzi in his famous financial scheme, said that in his opinion this was the real inducement that brought the dollars flowing in a vast stream into the Ponzi office.

Giberti admitted under cross-examination that in dealing with investors all his acts were under Ponzi's orders.

Sigurd O'Hansen of Dorchester testified he had asked Henry F. Neilson, a Ponzi agent, if it would be a good idea for him to get some of his friends in Norway to invest. International reply coupons and make a fortune. O'Hansen said Neilson advised him not to do that as it would be too much trouble for the folks in Norway.

Mrs. Adelina Mandarino of No. 11 Hull street, Boston, told of investing $100 and receiving $150 in return. F. B. Finn of Porter street, Cambridge, said he had invested $150 and later invested $200 more. Alexander Robinson of No. 101 Westville street, Dorchester, testified he had invested $1,000 with Ponzi. He said Neilson told him he had invested $3,000. He said Neilson did not say he had invested it with Ponzi, but that he was led to believe that.

To Cure Others Is Easy Those Wellesley Girls Pioneers Must Endure Gambling or War—No Profit

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, by Star Company.

"PHYSICIAN, Heal Thyself." That is in the Bible, also in modern life.

See two news paragraphs:

"John D. Rockefeller decides to stay one week longer in the sanitarium."

And:

"The Rockefeller Foundation spent $8,666,813 in health work during 1921."

IT is easier to cure others than to cure yourself. What John D. Rockefeller and other hard driven Americans need is not a sanitarium but relaxation. With the mind, as with other engines, you must sometimes take the belt off the driving wheel.

EUROPEAN physicians would tell Mr. Rockefeller as they told Mr. Harriman, that a cold water diet for a mental worker is dangerous. We know better than that, in the United States, yet Mayo, best known surgeon in America, and strong advocate of prohibition here, takes red wine when he goes to France.

YOUNG ladies at Wellesley rebel because older, more intelligent ladies of the faculty curtail their smoking.

When their hair is gray, these girls will know that the deepest satisfaction a woman gets out of life is in the love and companionship of her children.

Whatever she may do later, no woman has a right to put nicotine or any other poison into her blood until she finished her work, the creation of the next generation.

After the child-bearing is done, ladies, if they choose, may smoke, chew or dip snuff—but they ought not. Their job then is setting a good example.

IF a Wellesley young woman had known Beethoven or Michael Angelo, and had seen one of those gentlemen absorbing poison harmful to painting or music, she would have said, "Put that off until you have finished with your music and your painting."

PIONEERS must endure discouragement. The man that went far West in early days struggled against Indians, wild animals, "poor" soil. Coming back he found those that stayed home raising fine crops, living easily.

So in the world of mental pioneers. Those that plan for the future, break ground in new thought, have a hard, unsatisfactory time. When they return to the old ways of thought they find things so comfortable it makes them homesick.

TAKE Mussolini of Italy. He used to be a Socialist, dreaming bout ideal conditions, fixing up receipts for a world Utopia. Now

HUSBAND AND WIFE ACCUSERS

Holdup, Robbery and Personal Violence Alleged in Court

Patrolman Lawrence P. Cronin, in Dorchester Court today, was accused of the following:

Abusive and indecent language.

Striking Joseph E. Bowley of Monadnock street, Dorchester, on the head with a club, without cause or provocation.

Placing a revolver against the head of Bowley and threatening to kill him.

Attempting to attack Mrs. Margaret E. Bowley, attractive young mother of two children.

Robbing Bowley of $40 in cash.

Cronin was suspended from the department following an investigation.

Both Bowley and wife testified today.

TWO OTHERS ACCUSED.

Arraigned with Cronin were Myles Sweeney, Jr., and John T. McCarthy. Sweeney is charged with attempting to attack Mrs. Bowley, and McCarthy with assaulting Mr. Bowley.

Bowley said:

"On October 11 my wife and I had been motoring and on visits to friends in Malden and Cambridge. It was 1:45 a. m. when we started on our way home. We were driving in the Strandway near Edward Everett square, on Columbia road, when the motor stalled. I was tinkering with the self-starter when Cronin came along. He wanted to know who I was and who Mrs. Bowley was. I took out my pocketbook, which contained $40 in cash, and some identification papers. I intended to give him the papers, but he took the wallet and put it into his pocket.

CALLED HIM LIAR.

"Then he looked at Mrs. Bowley and said: 'Who's the woman?' I explained it was Mrs. Bowley. 'You're a liar,' he said. 'You wouldn't be out with your wife at this hour of the morning.' He stepped aside a moment and called somebody. A civilian came up. They talked a while. The civilian was Sweeney. Cronin took twisters out of his pocket and put them on my wrists. Then he asked Sweeney to hold me there a while. He pulled Mrs. Bowley out of the car and yanked her with him down the road.

"While they were away Sweeney told me he was a captain of police and said he intended to third degree my wife after Cronin got

Find Missing Youth Trapped in Grave With Pet Dog

New York, Nov. 1.—Holding his pet dog "Spike" in a fervid embrace, seven-year-old Tommy Hansen was found today in the bottom of a newly-dug grave in the Cliffside Cemetery after his parents had conducted a frantic search for him.

The boy had been in the grave about eight hours, and was almost exhausted from exposure. He had gone to the cemetery in search of "Spike," who had disappeared. The dog had fallen into the excavation and injured his leg. Tommy jumped in to rescue his pet, then found he could not get out.

ROMANCE BARED BY WILL CASE

Death Foiled Wedding of Aged Lodging House Keeper Who Left $25,000 to Pets

In the Superior Court today before Judge Brown and a jury a romance in which a sixty-year-old woman lodging house keeper and one of her lodgers were the principals, came to light.

It was brought out that the death of the groom-to-be, just three days before the proposed wedding, had ended the love match.

The woman in the case was Miss Ellen F. Barnard of No. 15 Temple place, who died in December, 1921, and whose will, in which she left a fortune of $25,000 for the care of her pet birds and cats, is being contested by eight nephews and nieces. The lodger was Edward E. Wells.

DEATH ENDED ROMANCE.

The lodging housekeeper was sixty years old when love came into her life. She had lived alone with her seven cats, two dogs, two canaries, one parrot and a cockatoo, for many years. She was never suspected of having a thought of love except toward her pets. But it was disclosed in the will contest today that she and Wells had planned everything for the wedding and that death blocked.

That was twenty-one years ago. She then made out her will, leaving $10 to each of her eight nephews

HUGE SUMS PAID IN TAXES TODAY

Today's receipts at City Collector McMorrow's office in City Hall will undoubtedly be the biggest in the history of Boston. The office will be kept open until midnight for the payment of taxes, as this is the last day on which they can be paid without adding interest from October 15.

Before noon ten individuals and firms had paid in $5,263,349.44. Among the big taxpayers sending checks were: C. E. Cotting, $1,445,192.18; New Haven Railway, $1,208,661.82; the Edison Company, $1,037,842.63; Boston & Albany Railroad, $679,793.47; Boston Gas Company, $597,837.74; Andrew J. Peters, $481.18; the Shepard Stores, $55,559.00; R. H. White Company, $87,610.90.

2 DOPE PEDLARS GIVEN JAIL TERMS

Charles Clark received a ten months' jail term in city court today for selling morphine, while Arthur Geary of Brooklyn received three months for delivering it. They were brought in by Inspectors Caverly, Monahan and Conway of the "dope" squad.

FIND KIDNAPED GIRL IN WOODS

Muskegon, Mich., Nov. 1.—Rosalie Shanty, eleven years old, kidnaped Sunday as she came from church, has been found wandering in the woods near Dublin, Manistee County, according to a telegram received today from the chief of police at Wellston, Mich.

According to the police the message intimated that the girl had been abandoned by her abductor and had wandered about in the woods until she reached a farmhouse where she was given shelter.

Muskegon officers have left for Wellston, where the girl was removed.

A message from Wellston at noon stated the child was in a dazed condition and unable to give any information as to where she had been. She appeared to be suffering from exposure and apparently believed she had just left home.

APPROVE DR. MOORE FOR WORLD COURT

Geneva, Nov. 1 (By the Associated Press)—Informal negotiations have been going on with the State Department in Washington for American participation in the election of judges to the permanent Court of International Justice, it was said at the League of Nations headquarters here today. Among suggestions made privately in Washington by friends of the League, is that the assembly and council amend the statutes so a non-member may participate in the election of the judges even without signing the protocol instituting the court. It is understood Dr. John Bassett Moore, the American now on the bench of the International Court, is quite acceptable to the United States government in that position.

$1,300,000 TO CITIES AS LIQUOR PROFITS

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 1.—British Columbia cities will receive for the last fiscal year $1,300,000, as their share of the profit from the sale of liquor by the Province, Attorney-General Manson has reported to the Legislature. The report showed that 6,568 prescriptions for liquor were issued in the year, as compared with 141,057 the year before the Moderation Act went into effect, when the Province was dry

SENT SON NO MONEY WHILE IN RENO TO DIVORCE BEAUTY

Burlington, Vt., Nov. 1.—A 500-page deposition from C. Douglas Woodhouse, husband of Dorrit Van Deusen Woodhouse, who is suing her parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse, for $1,000,000 for alienation, was submitted today in the Chittenden County Court here by Attorney Warren R. Austin as a part of the plaintiff's case.

Objections were registered to the admissibility of the document by Attorney V. A. Bullard, counsel for the defendants, on the ground that it contained facts that were immaterial. Judge Sherman R. Moulton excused the jury and ordered the court room cleared while opposing counsel argued on the objections in closed court.

WOODHOUSE, SR., GRILLED

The deposition was taken by the plaintiff's counsel at Reno, Nev., where Douglas has brought action for divorce. It was submitted by Attorney Austin after Lorenzo Woodhouse had completed his testimony under cross-examination.

The senior Woodhouse was given another grilling today by his daughter-in-law's counsel. Under the questioning he lost much of his composure and at times seemed nervous and agitated, particularly when questioned about large sums of money which the plaintiff claims he gave to his son after the latter began his suit for divorce in Reno.

SENT MONEY TO SON.

At first the witness said that he could not remember having sent any money to Douglas, but later Attorney Austin drew from him the admission that he had made gifts "such as one might send at Christmas time."

"Did you ever send him any money at Reno," asked the lawyer

"Not that I can remember," was the reply.

"Didn't you begin to pay him $100 regularly after he went to Reno?"

"I did not."

"Didn't you send him $1,200 at one time?"

"I did not."

RETURN HIS FORTUNE.

The witness also asserted that, to the best of his knowledge, Douglas' mother had never sent their son any money.

He admitted that his sons' wealth, which, according to testimony, amounted to $100,000, and which was held in trust by his mother when he entered the military service, had been returned to him after he had read Douglas's deposition.

By this testimony the plaintiff supported her contention that whereas before Douglas' marriage his parent bestowed large gifts of money on him, one of $50,000, after the marriage they gave him nothing.

Questioned as to when he learned about the affair in Washington between Douglas and Mrs. Lillian McClellan the witness said that he had "never interfered in Douglas's marital affairs in any way because he is quite old enough and able to decide such things for himself."

"Isn't it a fact," asked the attorney, "that in your family before the marriage of your son and daughter, there was a well-defined policy respecting the marriage of your children?"

"There never was any such agreement or arrangement whatever regarding that point," answered Mr. Woodhouse.

The name of Arthur Hill, an officer of the Merchants National Bank of Burlington, of which Mr. Woodhouse is president, was drawn into the case during the testimony today, when Attorney Austin sought to show that the elder Woodhouse had enlisted the support of Hill in trying to shatter his son's romance.

ATTORNEYS IN CLASH.

"If you wanted to interfere with the life of the wife of your son, on whom would you call to do it; or if you wanted to stop your son's wife from using his car, whom would you ask to do that?"

"I wouldn't want to do such a thing and wouldn't ask it."

"Then I shall prove that you did," declared Attorney Austin.

Attorney Bullard jumped to his feet to make strenuous objection, exclaiming: "You can't prove any such thing."

His indignant denial caused laughter among the spectators and Judge Moulton announced that he would clear the court if there were further disturbances.

313 SHIPS NEW HIGH RECORD FOR PANAMA

Panama, Nov. 1 (By the Associated Press).—Ships passing through the Panama Canal during October numbered 313, a new high record. Figures on the tolls collected last month were unobtainable today but it was expected that they also would set a new figure for any one month since the opening of the canal. Thirty-six ships had to be measured in October as they had never before gone through the cut.

3 Girls of 14 Have Vanished to Go on the Stage

Lure of the stage is blamed for the disappearance of three 14-year-old Lawrence girls now being sought in Boston.

The missing youngsters are Josephine Bonfiglio of No. 73 Newbury street; Nellie Ledane of No. 36 Haverhill street, and Mary Rapisorda of No. 162 Newbury street.

The trio started from their homes together to go to school. As far as their parents know they have no funds except some jewelry which the Rapisorda girl carried with her.

MILLIONAIRE IS CALLED 'BOOB' IN GIRL'S SUIT

New York, Nov. 1.—Blushing like a girl as his lawyer described him as a "boob," Clifford R. Hendrix, wealthy broker of Larchmont, appeared in Supreme Court before Justice McAvoy as defendant in a suit for $100,000.

Mrs. Maude L. Ceballos, known on the stage as Mona Desmond, alleges breach of promise to marry her. Hendrix is the son of the late Joseph C. Hendrix, former postmaster of Brooklyn, is married, lives in a $150,000 house at Larchmont and has just announced the birth of a child to Mrs. Hendrix, formerly Miss Eugenia Terry, a society girl.

Miss Desmond told the court that Hendrix, whom she had met first many years ago, renewed acquaintance with her in 1918 and promised to marry her. She said he had begun work on the Larchmont mansion which they were to occupy and that she was astonished when he went to her September 23, 1920, and said he could not marry her because he wanted heirs. He later married Miss Terry.

HER SECOND "VICTIM."

In his opening to the court, H. J. Lynch, attorney for Hendrix, did not spare his client in accusing him of weakness and gullibility in yielding to the woman who had twice "vamped" him.

Lynch told the court he would reveal the life of Miss Desmond before the trial was over, and that this was the second time she had ensnared a wealthy young Princeton student. He said that in 1903 she had induced another student there to elope with her. She later sued him for money. While she was still the wife of this young man, Lynch said, and after he had gone to a Mexican ranch to forget her, she was corespondent in a divorce suit brought against the husband of another actress.

BOMBARD HIM BY MAIL.

Lynch told how Hendrix had met Miss Desmond while in New York on a college weekend. At that time Lynch said she was still married to the other man. After Hendrix had broken off with her, Lynch said, she began to bombard him with postcards. An alleged sample was:

"Darling Clifford, although you beat me, although you blackened my eye, I love you still.

"Your loving wife-to-be."

The attorney said: "Gentlemen, you would think that the man would be through. He is gullible, easy going and a mark."

Later Hendrix met Miss Desmond at the Palais Royal and again was entangled, Lynch declared. He admitted that Hendrix supplied her with motor cars, money, an apartment and luxuries. Lynch said that Mrs. Hendrix was informed of the story of Miss Desmond before marrying Hendrix. Mrs. Hendrix was not able to come to court to testify.

DIVORCED IN 1904.

It was brought out that the plaintiff was married in August, 1904, in a Philadelphia hotel to a Princeton student named Fuller, who subsequently went to Mexico and got a decree of divorce granted.

Mrs. Ceballos admitted she was the corespondent named in the famous Edna May divorce case.

When asked if she had sued one Abraham Levy for breach of promise of marriage in 1901, she replied:

"I didn't want to marry him. I sued him for jewels that I loaned him when I needed money."

DEAD? EDISON IS TOO BUSY TO TALK

West Orange, N. J., Nov. 1 (By International News Service).—Thomas A. Edison, electric wizard, has not talked over the telephone for thirty-five years. His hearing is bad. His secretary made this known today when he spoke for Edison in denying reports that the aged inventor was dead. Asked if he had told Edison of the report the secretary replied in the affirmative and said that his employer only smiled and said he "was too busy to talk."

The Chicagoan, who, she says, is George Rogers, forty, has offered $500 down and other checks at regular intervals.

BRITISH SEEK PARLEY OVER CONSULS

By the Associated Press.

London, Nov. 1.—Ambassador Harvey, it is learned from an authoritative quarter, has received a note from the British government with regard to the case of the American consulate at Newcastle, closed last Summer, stating that Great Britain is ready to compromise by withdrawing the charges against the consulate officials of discrimination against British shipping, if the United States will reopen the consulate and replace Consul Slater and Vice-Consul Brooks with others.

It was understood the note also suggests Great Britain and the United States come to an agreement on the scope permitted American consular officials in drumming up trade for the United States.

The question thus assumes a much broader aspect than the Newcastle consulate issue, as it affects a large number of American consulates throughout the United Kingdom.

The New Way to Remove Corns. Japanese Method---Don't Hurt a Bit

Just a Touch of Ice-Mint Stops Soreness. Then the Corn or Callus Shrivels and Lifts Off. Try It. Your Feet will Feel Cool and Fine.

Thanks to a new discovery made from a Japanese product your foot troubles can be quickly ended.

Ice-Mint as this new preparation is called is said to shrivel up hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes so that they can be lifted out easily with the fingers. It's wonderful.

Think of it; just a little touch of that delightful, cooling soothing, Ice-Mint and real foot is yours. No matter how old or tough your pet corn is he will shrivel right up and you can pick him out after a few night's use of Ice-Mint. No pain, not a bit of soreness either when applying it or afterwards, and it doesn't even irritate the skin.

If your feet are inclined to swell or puff, or if you have cracked or bleeding toes, it will draw the inflammation out and quickly heal the sore and tender places. It is the real Japanese secret for fine, healthy little feet and is greatly appreciated by women who wear high heel shoes and men who have to stand on their feet all day.

No more tired, aching or burning feet—No more foot trouble. Ice-Mint will make your feet feel so cool and fine that you will just sigh with relief. It is now selling like "Wild Fire" here. Just ask in any drug store for a little Ice-Mint and give your poor suffering, tired feet the treat of their lives. There is nothing better, nor nothing just as good.

Our New Machine Is Here

Remington No. 12

The Quiet Typewriter

The New Model 12 Remington is the herald of a new era in typewriting.

It is quiet in operation. And it has been made so without the slightest impairment of the speed, ease of operation and dependability which are essential in a first-class writing machine.

This problem of achieving relative silence, combined with the full measure of Remington efficiency, was not solved in a day. The New Model 12 is the product of years of continuous laboratory work by Remington Engineers—the most skilled and experienced in the typewriter world. As a physician listens with his stethoscope, so these engineers listened to every "click," every "hum," every sound produced in the act of typing and experimented with every possible means for transforming noise into silence.

The result is a crowning triumph in typewriter construction; a machine which retains every basic Remington feature, every quality for which the Remington is famous, every distinctive Remington improvement, including the famous self-starter and the equally celebrated "natural touch," and in addition no less than

14 noise-eliminating features

The sum of these improvements is a degree of silence that enables the busy business man to think and work without distraction, even though the machine is also working at his elbow.

The price of this new Model 12 Remington, with "A" carriage is $110—just $7.50 more than the Standard machine —a $7.50 premium for quiet.

Under conditions where quiet is not essential, we continue to recommend our Standard Correspondence Machine—the Improved Self-Starting Remington—the typewriter that is making "natural touch" famous, the machine that has made automatic indenting an accomplished fact.

Please call and see and listen to the new Remington No. 12 or phone us for a demonstration.

A good typewriter deserves a good ribbon. Paragon ribbons—made by us 75 cents each, $7 a dozen

Some of the 14 Noise-Eliminating Features of New No. 12 Remington

A new cushioned cylinder which gives clean cut originals and carbons—and is Quiet.

A new type of bail which prevents any air chamber between paper and cylinder and takes another "click" out of typewriting.

A new method of eliminating noise from the escapement. The escapement dog strikes against a spring instead of solid metal. The result is Quiet.

A new cable anvil, made of finest piano wire, spiraled in two directions. In reality it is a shock absorber for the type mechanism—and it is Quiet.

The body of the machine is enclosed in sound proof plates—Quiet.

Even the slight noise caused by the type falling back in the basket has been reduced.

Eight other sound-reducing features complete this great Remington contribution to quiet—and every advantage which quiet confers on a business office.

MINISTER BLESSES ELOPING SON AND BRIDE AFTER PHONE CALL

FOUND IN BACK BAY SUITE

Worcester Clergyman Takes Them Home in His Auto to Live With Him

Worcester, Nov. 1.—A telephone call from a Commonwealth avenue apartment, in the Back Bay section of Boston, to the Rev. James E. Wagner, pastor of Trinity Church, informed the minister that his son, Eugene Wagner, twenty-three years old, had secretly married Miss Emma E. Fergeus, twenty-three years old, of No. 45 Upsala street.

The Rev. Wagner got in his automobile and drove to Boston, where he met his son and daughter-in-law. Giving them his parental blessing, he took them in the car and brought them back here. They are now living at his residence.

SPRINGFIELD LICENSE.

Last August, they said, they went to Springfield with Wagner's chum, Albert Leland of Boston. On the trip they decided on a surprise wedding, and accordingly made application for a marriage license, returning five days later to secure it.

After getting the license, however, they became afraid that their parents might not approve. So they waited, saying nothing to anyone about their plans, hoping for an auspicious turn of fate.

Finally, on October 14, they mustered up courage for the step. [illegible] they were married by the Rev. Neil McPherson, a Congregational clergyman of that city.

MATCH APPROVED.

Returning to Worcester long enough to pack their belongings, they went on to Boston, where they secured an apartment on Commonwealth avenue.

There they spent their honeymoon. When they at last telephoned their parents and informed them of the marriage, they found their fears of objections had been groundless, as all parties concerned expressed their approval of the match.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl G. Fergeus. Young Wagner is a graduate of Wesleyan University, and served in the Navy during the World War.

HOLD MAN IN FIRES WHICH KILLED 22

New York, Nov. 1.—Joseph Prestonnacci was arrested today as he ran from the hallway of an uptown apartment where a fire had been started. Police believe the arrest may solve the mystery of two fires in uptown apartments recently in which twenty-two lives were lost.

"Boardwalk" Exposition Has Smart Set All Excited, Declares Betty Alden

MISS REBEKAH HOBBS

By BETTY ALDEN.

"WHO'S going to sell what" is very much the question these days among the smart set's feminine contingent. For everyone who has a pet charity wants to have a booth at the Atlantic City Boardwalk Exposition, which is due to walk into town on December 1.

Today the members of the entertainment committee of the exposition are to meet at the Beacon street home of Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs, who is one of the matrons most prominently connected with this novel project. Miss Rebekah Hobbs, her daughter, who made her debut a few years ago, is to have charge of the ushers at the Boardwalk Theatre, where afternoon and evening performances will be given each day during the eight days of the exposition.

Everyone, everywhere, seems to be talking about the "boardwalk" just now, which, by the way, is for the combined benefit of the New England Hospital for Women and Children, the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, Disabled Ex-Service Men and the Frances E. Willard Settlement.

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD LAWRENCE (Margery Prescott) are closing their country home at Groton, and are coming to their apartment in town at No 386 Commonwealth avenue. The Lawrences spent the mid-Summer at Nahant, going later to Groton for the Fall months.

THERE seems to have been no end of excitement recently in the Pollard and Sortwell households.

About a month ago "Pete" Sortwell and his wife (Elise Pollard) were showered with congratulations upon the birth of a little son. The Sortwells already have four lively little daughters, but this is their first son.

A little over a fortnight ago, Miss Katherine Pollard, a sister of Mrs. Sortwell, became the bride of the Rev. William Stride, the marriage taking place at St. John's Church in Gloucester. Now the young couple are bound for England to visit Mr. Stride's family, planning to return later to the Grenfel Mission in Labrador, with which both have been connected for several years.

Shortly after the marriage of his sister-in-law to the young English clergyman, "Pete" Sortwell was taken seriously ill with pneumonia. I understand that he is now considered out of danger, though he will probably be confined to his home for some time to come.

MISS NINA HIGGINSON, the dark-haired daughter of the Francis Lee Higginsons of Beacon street, is the guest of her cousins, the Misses Theresa and Lee Higginson, at their country home in Lenox.

ONE hears that the former Dorothy Peabody, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Endicott Peabody of Groton, is very much "on the go" these days. For she is helping her husband, F. Trubee Davison, in his campaign. Mr. Davison, who is a candidate for the Assembly from the Second New York District, which takes in Nassau, his home, is the son of the late Henry P. Davison and Mrs. Davison of New York.

It was about two and a half years ago that Dorothy Peabody became the bride of young Davison, member of the Yale class of '13. The wedding was solemnized in the chapel of Groton School, and it was the bride's father, of course, who performed the ceremony. Since their marriage the young couple have been making their home in New York at No. 430 West 116th street.

MISS ALISON T. L. HAUGHTON of Boston, sister of Percy Haughton of football-coach fame, was in the party which made a tramp over the Berkshire Monument Mountain Trail to the summit. The climb was made by the committee for the Laurel Hill Association to find out how the reservation might be made more accessible.

In the party with Miss Haughton were Alexander Sedgwick, Miss Mabel Choate, Edward B. Owen and William H. Clarke.

TWO ACCUSED BY STOUGHTON GIRL, 15

Stoughton, Nov. 1.—Two men who are alleged to have lured Hazel E. Porter, 15 years old, and two other girls from home have been arrested. Ramey Faniant, 20 years old, and Alexander Pepper, 23 years old, both of Summer street, Brockton, are under arrest. A third youth is being sought. Mrs. Porter believes her daughter was "doped."

DECREASE CONTINUES IN POSTAL SAVINGS

Washington, Nov. 1.—Postal savings deposits continue to shrink, but the decrease during the quarter ended September 30 was smaller than in any three-month period since March, 1919, when deposits reached the peak. Assistant Postmaster-General Glover declared today, in a statement which said erroneous unofficial reports as to the postal savings decline had been published. Deposits in March, 1919, reached the unprecedented figure of $176,828,824, declining gradually to $155,626,900 on September 30.

ALIENISTS FIND MRS. ROSIER WAS INSANE

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 1.—Mrs. Catherine Rosier, too weak longer to support herself, stumbled to her knees in the little corridor leading from the court room when the twelfth long day of her trial on a charge of killing Mildred Reskitt and her husband, Oscar, dragged to its close.

Her arms dropped limply. Tears streamed from her upturned face. In a voice that was a plaintive cry she prayed:

Mrs. Rosier

"Oh, God, give me strength, give me strength. In mercy let this end soon."

Attendants carried her to the sheriff's room.

The day of rebuttal testimony, though turned in almost every instance by John R. K. Scott, her attorney, into a triumph for the defence, had been a burden too heavy for her to bear.

Dr. Margaret Nelson, prison physician who attended the girl wife as she waited for trial, had testified:

"Yes, I said she was subnormal. I suppose she did make a complaint about her food. I was planning to put her on milk and eggs."

KILLS SELF AFTER SHOOTING WIFE

North Bergen, N. J., Nov. 1.—Suffering from melancholia, Frederick German, a steamfitter, early today shot and seriously wounded his wife and then killed himself while the two were in bed. Two sons sleeping in an adjoining room said they did not hear the shots, but Fred Olson, who lived in the same building, was awakened and broke through the door. He found German dead and Mrs. German unconscious.

SMYRNA GIRLS COMING TO WELLESLEY

Sixteen girl refugees from the Smyrna Collegiate Institute are being brought to America on the King Alexander, which raced to make New York harbor today so that the girls might be brought in under the immigration quota for November.

These girls, sole survivors of the 300 who attended the school, were saved by a teacher of the Boys' College, who managed to get them on board an American destroyer. They are in charge of Mrs. Anna Birge. They will be taken to various American colleges by Mrs. Ralph Harlow, head of the Walker Missionary Home in Auburndale.

Wellesley College will take two of them. The students of the college have taken up a collection to defray expenses. The girls are expected to arrive at Wellesley Friday.

Miss Sara Snell, Wellesley '16, is returning to her home in Brookline on the same ship. She was in Smyrna at the time of the invasion, conducting a settlement house in connection with the collegiate institute. She was among those saved and placed on the American destroyer.

WEEKS TAKES STAND AGAINST FILM CENSOR

SECRETARY OF WAR ON RECORD

Letter Urges Public to Give Will Hays Chance as Head of Industry

Secretary of War John W. Weeks is opposed to State Censorship of the movies. He has implicit faith in the ability of Will Hays, head of the motion picture industries, to make the films of America in keeping with the desires and ideals of the American people.

In a letter to General Charles H. Cole of the Committee of Massachusetts Citizens Against a Censorship Secretary Weeks urges that the public give Mr. Hays and others in authority in the movie world "a fair opportunity to demonstrate their ability to serve the public usefully."

"The industry has had an enormous growth," Secretary Weeks said in his letter. "Irresponsible people have, from time to time, become engaged in it. Their one thought has been to attract, not to interest and educate, and in so doing, have presented pictures which should never have been put on public exhibition. But the whole enterprise, which has become so important that they have called to its head former Postmaster-General Will Hays, who has been given a guiding hand in this industry and in whom I have so much confidence that I believe he can so adjust the displays made that there will be no offense, even from the viewpoint of the most critical.

"If he finds, or it is found, that it is impossible to do this, I believe that there should be a national censorship rather than a [illegible] industry hampered by forty-eight censorships."

The closing days of the Boston American's censorship contest is bringing in the eleventh hour deluge of letters of protest. The best letter will draw $250, the second best $100, and the third-best $50. Send in yours NOW.

PLAYS RESPECT AGE

Editor Boston American:

The problem of censorship boils itself down to two essentials in the crucible of thoughtful investigation. Those two essentials are the moral and practical bases of the question.

If, as they claim, the censors are placed in office for the purpose of passing judgment to eliminate lewd pictures, are they not doing over again the work of the laws barring the presentation of such plays? For there is such legislation. This being true, what need is there of censorship? Is the public of America so depraved that it must have a double lock put upon its right to self-expression?

Again, how about the results of censorship as it has been pursued? What is the significance of the fact that pictures barred from release in one State are permitted in another? Why is it that the censors cannot agree that such and such a picture is or is not fit to be presented? Because different men's ideas of morality are different.

The history of drama shows that the plays of Shakespeare's day, and also during the period of restoration in England, were so vile and lewd that no audience today would tolerate them on the stage. But it was not censorship that cleansed the stage of yesterday. Why should it be adequate to cleanse the screen today?

It was the people whose common voice slowly but surely made itself heard across the footlights. Plays reflect the age in which they are produced. Has the American public become so degenerate that unclean plays reflect their lives?

Are we, the public, 90 per cent. morons who must have guardians, or are we The People?

People Are Their Own Censors, in Canty's View

George R. Canty.

The motion picture is the poor man's entertainment. It was originally conceived to permit the working classes the opportunity of going to the theatre for a clean wholesome show at a price well within their limit. The industry today is rapidly becoming the leader in the United States, affording employment for many hundreds of thousands of citizens. Its income to the government makes up in a great part the huge financial deficit caused by prohibition, and the motion picture theatre in its many channels has relieved the unemployment situation. Reformers, however, are seeking more experiments at the expense of the public by crying for stricter censorship. It is absurd to think that by the appointment of one man in Massachusetts the welfare of the public is to be advanced. The people are their own censors, as is evidenced by the failure of objectionable pictures or films.

RISING TIDE OF RESENTMENT AT CENSOR

The action of Senator Chamberlain in openly admitting that he voted the wrong way on the censorship bill has attracted wide attention. The belief now exists in the minds of some that other Senators have also changed their ideas but, for obvious reasons, are not making their change of heart known.

But the tide of opposition, even resentment, is rising. Next Tuesday will see the protests formally lodged in the ballot boxes of the State.

Here are some more interviews:

Miss Gladys Stoll, No. 5 Green street, Jamaica Plain:

"It's a pity these blue sky people can't find something worth-while to fight about. I would like to know why some people are never satisfied unless they are taking pleasures away from their neighbors. If the majority wanted censorship they would get it without any trouble for they could vote for it. But when only a handful of men and women want it, it seems too bad that the majority has to put up with such agitation as is going on just now. I say keep censorship of the movies out of politics."

Gladys Stoll.

Miss Ruth Butler, No. 8 Haverford street, Jamaica Plain:

"What is this country coming to, anyway? When I go to the movies, I want to see pictures that tell complete stories and not a patched up affair, with the principal scenes cut out just to suit the fancy of some censor. I would suggest that the men and women who are trying to force this thing through get into a fight against coal profiteers

PEACE TERMS ACCEPTED IN MILL STRIKE

By CHARLES O. POWER.

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 1.—Rt. Rev. George A. Guertin's plan for the settlement of the great textile strike, which has been waging for thirty-nine weeks, with 18,000 operatives resisting the employment terms of the Amoskeag Company, has been accepted by the strikers.

Announcement of this fact will be made by the Bishop of Manchester tonight after the official count of the ballots has been formally handed to him. At the same time he will tell the attitude of the company relative to the peace terms.

A canvass of many strikers belonging to the various local unions involved in the strike indicates beyond any doubt that a majority of the locals have voted for acceptance.

The bishop's settlement program provides for the 54-hour week until February 1 next, instead of the 48 demanded by the strikers; the restoration of the wage cut and no discrimination in re-employment, both sides to get together on the above date and give further consideration to the question of hours.

$500,000 Stadium Built by Marines From Waste

Washington, Nov. 1.—Built entirely of waste and donated materials and without cost to the taxpayers of the country, a stadium which will rival any university athletic field is approaching completion at the United States Marine Corps base at Quantico, Va.

The stadium is being built in a natural amphitheatre formed by hills along a small stream by marines in spare time. The course of the stream was changed. The ends of the semi-amphitheatre have been closed, this task involving the moving of more than 150,000 cubic yards of earth. The stadium proper will be 630 feet long and 325 feet wide.

The stadium when completed will represent a cost of $500,000 had the work been done by private contractors.

TRAINER MAKES WALLACE REID WELL AGAIN

Los Angeles, Nov. 1.—With Teddy Hayes, who aided in training Dempsey for his fight with Carpentier, as his instructor, Wallace Reid, famous film actor, is beating his way back to health and restored vision via the physical training route.

This became known today when Reid was hunted out in his mountain retreat, to which he was taken weeks ago.

The American representative found "Wally" working out on a mountain trail by walking a mile and heaving pebbles down a gulley at Teddy's direction.

Threatened with loss of vision, a condition in part induced by too constant work under film studio lights, Reid had looked darkly upon a dark world.

"Tell all my friends," he added, "that I'm surely on the road to recovery, thanks to my decision to regain my health through observance of nature's laws and physical training. I thank them for their kind words for me in my illness, and how much, very much, I appreciate them."

Are SOME HOUSEWIVES TOO CARELESS in this respect?

NO matter how careful one may be in selecting the very choicest ingredients for making a cake, if you do not have the right kind of shortening the cake is likely to be heavy, soggy and hard to digest.

One reason for this may be that both butter and lard contain a certain percentage of water.

ON the other hand, Mazola, the great American cooking and salad oil, is absolutely free from water. It mixes perfectly with your cake ingredients, and prevents lumps from forming. Mazola is more economical than butter or lard. If your recipe calls for, say, a cupful of butter or lard, you need use only ⅔ to ¾ of a cupful of Mazola. Mazola is sold by all grocers.

GARLAND READS ALL LETTERS, THEN CAREFULLY FILES THEM

EXPLODES POPULAR THEORY THAT HE TEARS UP ALL COMMUNICATIONS UNOPENED

Basing her stories on observations made while she was a member of the colony, The Flapper has given a detailed description of life at Charles Garland's "April Farm" in North Carver. She has related her talks with Garland, and with the four girls who keep him company, Anna, Doris, Harriett and Alice. The conversation turned to mothers, and Doris told the Flapper that Garland's mother spent some time on the farm, writing poetry. A portion of this poetry was shown the Flapper. Now go on with the story.

By THE FLAPPER
(CARYL FRINK)

When Garland returned with the mail it was all Anna could do to keep herself from scampering out to meet him.

Instead she remained cross-legged on the floor, patiently peeling apples for apple-butter. When he did come in she affected unconcern. She greeted him without looking up.

But when "Barley" tossed her a couple of letters she jumped up and ran to a corner of the shack, turning her back on the company.

She tore open the envelopes and read her letters with little squeals of merriment.

"What does thy husband say that pleases thee so?" asked Alice

Written in Hunky

"You wouldn't understand it, Al," returned Anna. "It's written in Hunky."

And she bent her little bobbed head over her letters again.

"Anna and her husband are Hungarians," Alice told me. "When we want to tease them we call them Punkies."

Alice anxiously asked Barley if he had eaten, suggesting that the onions and potatoes could easily be warmed.

He said he had had something to eat in town. I wondered what. Barley remained a few minutes to contribute a word or two to a free-for-all, catch-as-catch-can discussion about private property, and community souls. He tore open a bunch of letters and read them all over carefully. Then he put them away in an elaborate letter file. Which explodes, once and for all, the theory that Charles Garland tears up his letters without reading them.

He had a cosey pipe or two and then, with a large yawn, went out to feed the stock.

"If we're going to have potatoes any more today, may I fix them?" Anna wanted to know.

"How?" asked Alice.

"Fried raw with lots of paprika and onions," said Anna. "That's Hungarian fried. They turn out a most artistic pink."

Make Apple-Butter

"I think," said Alice, "that we will finish up the package of shredded wheat we opened up last night. Are the apples about ready to put on?"

Two great kettles of peeled apples were put on the back of the cook stove where they would have to stay two days, according to Anna's recipe for apple-butter. The recipe also included an almost constant "tasting," which consisted of doing away with a heaping tablespoonful of the simmering apples.

After each test Anna would add a little more sugar or say dreamily

"Needs hours more cooking."

While the apples cooked Anna wrote pages and pages with a miniature fountain pen, the gift of the new husband. She tilted her head to one side as she wrote and occasionally caught her tongue between her teeth in an infantile gesture of concentration.

When the letter was finished she stamped it vigorously.

"There now," she announced. "I've asked my husband two most important questions. When he answers them I can go ahead and plan my life."

When Anna and Harriet had gone back to the vegetable garden to work, Doris turned to Alice, who was humming a little tune while she sewed a collar on a woolen blouse.

Alice Light-Hearted

"Why are you so happy, Al?" she asked.

"Am I?" smiled Alice.

"Yes," said Doris. "I've never seen you so light-hearted. You haven't been lately, you know."

"Maybe," said Alice, "it's because Harry and Anna are here. It isn't so lonesome with them around. And besides," she added significantly, "I'm not thinking of Jim any more."

And with that she threw down the blouse and ran out of the shack.

"Jim," said Doris, "is the man Alice is in love with. I think she used to be engaged to him. She never says much about him. Poor Al."

It was that night that I heard Harry and Alice talking about "Renie."

"Renie" is the young bride of Hamilton Garland, the youngest of the three Garland brothers. She was Irene Mann before her marriage a year ago last August. She had been adopted into the Garland family some years ago, by Mrs. Mary Garland. It is a strange thing that the three young girls adopted by Mrs. Garland should have played so important a part in the lives of her three sons.

Both Doris Benson and Lillian Conrad were foster daughters in the Garland family. Charles Garland at one time announced to the world that Lillian had displaced his wife, Mary Wrenn Garland, in his affections. Shortly after this Lillian disappeared, but her name is frequently and openly spoken at April Farm.

"You ought to see Renie in her new home," Harriet was saying. "She loves it so. She is very dazzling about it, I suppose because it belongs to her."

"I am glad," replied Alice, "that she seems to be happy. I didn't think she was exactly tranquil when I saw her last."

"Well, she is now," said Harry. "She puts her sofa cushions and places them just so, caressingly, and when you catch her at it she tells you right out that she thinks she's got the loveliest home in the world and she's crazy about it."

"She didn't seem a bit interested in that sort of thing before," said Alice. "I'm certainly happy for her."

To Be Continued.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, or bronchial asthma.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and tastes good.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Senator France Puts $17,500 Phonograph Records on Stump

Washington, Nov. 1.—Senator Joseph I. France, Republican, fighting to hold his seat in normally Democratic State, "said it with music" in presenting his candidacy to Maryland voters.

France introduced the phonograph record as a "stump orator" urging voters to return him to the Senate. To put his musical idea across France purchased 50,000 records at a cost of $17,500 and distributed them free in the homes of Maryland voters.

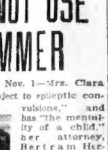
On side of each record bore a series of excerpts from France's principal senatorial addresses. On the opposite side France had inscribed the strains of the "Star-Spangled Banner" and "Maryland, My Maryland."

INSISTS GIRL DID NOT USE HAMMER

Los Angeles, Nov. 1.—Mrs. Clara Phillips is "subject to epileptic convulsions," and has "the mentality of a child," her attorney, Bertram Herrington, declared in the defence in her trial for the murder of Mrs. Alberta Meadows.

Alberta Meadows

The attorney asserted he would prove that the defendant did not wield the hammer with which the State contends Mrs. Meadows was beaten to death on Montecito drive on July 12 last. He declared it would be shown that Mrs. Phillips' every action that day was "guided by Peggy Caffee," prosecution witness who testified she saw Mrs. Phillips striking Mrs. Meadows with the hammer.



Herrington declared he would show that Mrs. Meadows was called Phillips again after an altercation and fight between her and Mrs. Phillips, in which the latter's little finger was practically broken and she appealed to Mrs. Caffee for aid. It was Mrs. Caffee, he asserted, who bought the hammer, not Mrs. Phillips.

'Tis Fatigue Toxin Makes the T. B. M. So Tired

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 1.—Advancing a new theory concerning chronic fatigue, Dr. Edward H. Ochsner of Chicago, president-elect of the Illinois State Medical Society, defined the "tired business man" as suffering from an "accumulation of fatigue material or toxin."

"The disease," he said, "is a condition particularly liable to affect hard working, successful business men, at an age when they are most needed in a growing business. The sloven, the laggard, the phlegmatic and the weak-willed are rarely ever affected. Rest, while important, serves only to check the accumulation of fatigue."

SCRAP R. R. BOARD SAYS DAVIS

(Copyright, 1922, by International News Service.)

Portland, Ore. Nov. 1.—Abolish the Railroad Labor Board and free the railroads from government fetters.

Federal meddling, without real power behind it, stirs up dissatisfaction and irritation.

Pay labor a "saving wage," not merely a "living wage."

This epitomizes the views of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, as given International News Service today, in an exclusive interview.

Secretary Davis regards the problem so vital and continuation of the present policy so menacing that he expects to formulate a definite program, on his return to Washington, which will deal with railroad labor conditions "on a sensible, practical and human basis."

"The present system makes mountains out of molehills—make mountain issues out of every petty disagreement between a section hand and his foreman," he declared.

RADIO SHOW IS MARVEL OF NEW APPARATUS

Much new apparatus which had arrived too late for the opening day of the Boston Radio Show in Mechanics Building was displayed to a marveling crowd on the second day of the exposition.

The booths have been fitted up more extensively than at the previous show last Spring, and the greater development of radio appliances is reflected throughout the exhibit.

The booth of A. P. Merchant Company which features the new Merchant radio desk was particularly attractive.

How coils are wound for radio work is demonstrated at the Coto-Coil booth, where a fair inspector from the Providence factory displays the operation of the coil-winding machines. These machines wind in both plain winding for transformers and in honeycomb winding for inductance coils. An automatic device stops the machine when the proper number of coils have been wound. The machine will also interweave a cotton thread with the wire, which gives stability and increased insulation.

A new Amrad receiver just announced to the public combines one stage of radio and two stages of audio frequency amplification with detection in one cabinet, which also provides room for "B" battery in the back of the case. The new receiver was being demonstrated in a minia ture house, in which daintily attired girls served tea and comfortable chairs invited stopping.

The program for today includes talks by O. C. Enos on "Ship Rescue by Radio"; A. D. Moulton on "Receiving Without Phones," and by W. R. Barrow on "The Trend of Radio Broadcasting." The contest for reception of cipher code started at 9 a. m.

When You Catch Cold Rub on Musterole

Musterole is easy to apply and it gets in its good work right away. Often it prevents a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. Just apply Musterole with the fingers. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster without the blister.

Musterole is a clean white ointment made of oil of mustard and other home simples. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of all sorts. Seldom fails to deliver results. 35c and 65c, jars and tubes; hospital size, $3.00.

FITZGERALD CALLS FOR TRADE REVIVAL IN BAY STATE

SCORES STATE DRY ACT AT BIG WORCESTER RALLY

By FREDERICK E. STANLEY

Worcester, Nov. 1.—Worcester, the heart of the Commonwealth, welcomed the members of the Democratic State ticket at a mammoth rally in the Worcester Casino and sent them away with added assurance that this year is a Democratic year, that John F. Fitzgerald will be the next Governor and that William A. Gaston will replace Henry Cabot Lodge as the next Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. Fitzgerald received an ovation lasting several minutes when he rose to make his 140th address in the campaign and twenty-fifth for the day.

RAPS STATE DRY ACT.

Before going on to the platform, Mr. Fitzgerald issued a statement to the press relative to his stand on the State Volstead act.

"The sturdy, old-fashioned principle that every man's home is his castle is being recklessly destroyed," he declared. "I am opposed to the adoption of this new State Volstead Act because it will turn loose 4,000 more raiders to harrass the law abiding people of this Commonwealth.

"The Volstead law is unpopular. It does not represent the broad sentiment of the people. The spasmodic attempts to enforce it are futile, partial and unjust. It places most of our people in the class of lawbreakers. Sheriffs and chiefs of police everywhere have given me their opinion that this law, resting on no secure foundation of public approval, is impossible of enforcement. The farmer, who makes cider from his own apples, submits himself to the danger of criminal prosecution and the seizure of his home.

"Public officials have too long closed their eyes to the fact that a feeling exists among the people of this State that the rich find no difficulty in obtaining highly-intoxicating liquors while the worker is denied a mild beverage.

"Let us do away with this hypocrisy. Let candidates for office tell the public just where they stand on these issues. I favor the liberalization of the Volstead Act. Governor Cox fears to meet either side of the issue. This election is being watched by the country. A vote for him would fail to tell whether we are for or against the issue."

Mr. Fitzgerald's call for a "mighty, masterful Massachusetts" was warmly received by the crowd.

"Wake up, Massachusetts," he began.

URGES TRADE REVIVAL.

"Don't be afraid of your wonderful opportunities. Take advantage of every one of them.

"We have a wonderful seacoast and superb harbors. The Berkshire Hills are unsurpassed. Our industries know no superior. Our workmen and mechanics are the best in the world.

"I have no respect for any public official who approaches our future with fear and trembling. We have had too much of the neutral, do-nothing, fearful, unlikely incompetent administration.

"We need a leadership that has confidence in ourselves. Let us marshal the brains, man-power and wonderful resources of our State. And we will be a mighty, magnificent Massachusetts, in the front rank of the proud Commonwealths of the world."

"As Governor, I will establish Foreign Trade Councils," he said. "I will call the colleges into conference to establish practical training of practical business pursuits. We must revive our sail and water transportation. We are known as the home of the Home Market Club. Let us be known as the home of the markets of the world."

"I favor the immediate enactment of strong laws, containing drastic penalties, to protect the savings of the people. The Bank Commissioner admits that the laws were stripped of their teeth.

PEOPLE DUPED.

"Laws without penalties are harmless. They offer no safeguard to the people.

"We paid for years the salaries of examiners whose duty was to investigate the conditions of the banks but it is found that these "straw loans" which are alleged to have despoiled the people's savings were made in some instances eight years before the banks were closed.

"I know the people of Massachusetts. I know their aims, hopes and aspirations. They know me. They will not be afraid to come to the Governor's office."

Mr. Fitzgerald's schedule for Thursday is as follows:

10:30 a. m., Randolph, Town Square; 11 a. m., Stoughton, Town Square; 12:30 p. m., Sharon, Town Square; 1:30 p. m., Canton, Washington Square; 2:30 p. m., Milton, Edward S. Wilmot, Hard Rooting Company; 3 p. m., Walpole, Town Square; 4:30 p. m., Norwood, Town Square; 7 p. m., Medfield, Post office Square; 8:30 p. m., Millis, Postoffice Square; 9:40 p. m., Medway, Postoffice Square; 8:10 a. m., Franklin, Town Square; 9:30 a. m., Wrentham, Town Common; 10:30 a. m., Plainville, Town Square; 11:30 a. m., Mansfield, Railroad Square; 2 p. m., North Attleboro, Town Square; 5:30 p. m., Attleboro, Town Square; 6:15 p. m., Taunton, The Green; 8 p. m., Fall River; 9 p. m., New Bedford.

FREIGHT EMBARGOED ON NEW HAVEN R. R.

A partial embargo on freight shipments, is in effect on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad as the result of unusual congestion caused by embargoes on other lines, which diverted shipments to that road. Increases in daily loads to approximately 11,000 makes it necessary, according to New Haven officials, to curtail the number of cars in order to keep the tracks clear and insure maximum service.

"HANDWRITING ON WALL," SAYS FITZ

Fitzgerald Victory Tour workers picked up this poster in Maynard. On being shown to the Democratic gubernatorial candidate he said: "It's the handwriting on the wall for my opponents. G. O. TODAY he returns to the old thought, to become head of the Fascisti. Other mental frontiersmen that see him will find him comfortable, at the head of a REAL government, giving REAL orders to real people.

HE seems an intelligent, reformed Socialist; says he will always be friendly to America, because "it is wise to be polite to those to whom you owe money." He has done what the King would have liked to do, but didn't know how to do. He has taken over the country on behalf of middle class people, that have little, and want to keep it; those not interested at all in new ideas, but much interested in the old value of Italian money, now departed. He will succeed, at least for a while.

WAR and gambling don't pay, win or lose. Ask Monsieur Dejen. He won the Croix De Guerre, then went to work in the Paris bank of Morgan & Company, who won in the war and something more substantial than a Croix De Guerre. Dejen is now arrested for stealing 675,000 francs from Morgan. With that money he gambled at Deauville, lost all but two thousand francs, then won more than a million francs. He could have paid back what he stole, but gamblers don't do that, and he didn't. He went on gambling, lost everything, is in jail.

Gambling doesn't pay, except for poli-; gentlemen that own racetracks and make little thieves pay the expenses. Cold-blooded professional gamblers that fleece foolish sons of rich men and cheat them.

TURKEYS are higher, and will be more expensive. In our country are fewer than four million turkeys, less than 4 per cent. of a turkey p capita, if they were all eaten this month.

Recently turkeys have gone up 100 pe cent, while the total number of turkeys has fallen 50 per cent.

Young turkeys die, if it is too wet, too cold, too dry.

THE Secretary of Agriculture should study methods of raising turkeys under glass or somehow. Perhaps the turkey mother is at fault, and some other mother, guinea hen or bantam fowl might do better. These facts interest ten people in the United States for one interested in next Tuesday's election. Therefore, in our civilization, the kind of Thanksgiving dinner is more important than the kind of government.

Shot by Thief; Dying

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 1.—Leslie Corkum, grocer, was probably fatally shot by a robber, who escaped with $560.

COAL NEEDED HERE STILL IN MINES

Much of the coal the public expects to burn this Winter has not yet been mined, and cannot be mined in time to reach here before next Spring, according to a statement today from the Boston Emergency Fuel Committee, of which Everett Morss is chairman.

The committee says:

"The anthracite shortage in Boston today is greater than during the war and unprecedented in our history. So far only inconvenience has resulted, but during the really cold weather the situation will grow steadily worse and no man can foretell how much actual hardship you will suffer.

"You can protect your own household by beginning to burn some substitute fuel at once. Most of us will have to burn soft coal, but perhaps you can burn wood, coke, fuel oil, kerosene or gas.

"Much as you may object to soft coal it contains more heat than anthracite. You can burn it in your ranges and in your furnace if you will learn how.

"Now is the time to experiment. Save your anthracite during the next six weeks. You will need more than you can get in January."

NANCE O'NEIL IN ABSORBING NEW DRAMA

By FRED J. McISAAC, Dramatic Editor.

Those who crave the exotic in their dramatic fare are going to admire "Field of Ermine," in which Nance O'Neil is appearing at the Plymouth Theatre.

It is the work of Jacinto Benavente, the Spanish playwright, whose turgid and overpowering drama "The Passion Flower" gave Miss O'Neil the biggest success she has enjoyed for many years.

Rarely have I seen a play more superbly mounted or better cast, though there are a score of important speaking parts in "Field of Ermine." The greatest praise must be accorded Miss O'Neil for the care with which this unusual play was produced.

MANY IMPORTANT ROLES.

John Garrett Underhill, who translated this piece, as he did "The Passion Flower," is a writer of forceful and eloquent English. I doubt if Benavente suffers anything in translation at such hands. And it is always a great pleasure to hear Miss O'Neil read eloquent lines. "Field of Ermine," however, is not merely a vehicle for a star. There are half a dozen very important roles and the part of the boy comes nearer to being the stellar role than any other. It was splendid to see Miss O'Neil yield the centre of the stage to the various characters as they took charge of different situations. The entire first act belongs to Mara Shotwell, as the scheming courtesan. Alice Fischer, as a plain speaking aristocrat, carries off one very important scene, and Edwin Dougherty, a seven-year-old boy, shares honors with the star a dozen times in the play. And yet the personality of Nance O'Neil is always felt, whether she is standing motionless in a corner or speaking with that mellow, resonant voice of hers.

PLAY ABSORBING.

The play itself, though brilliant, absorbing and vital, is unfortunately not likely to please any but a small discriminating class. It is Spanish life, not in the raw, as in "The Passion Flower," but rather too strongly flavored for our conventional bringing-up. The age of the character in the play) is made intoxicated by a heartless young girl is repulsive, and the continual argument about his paternity, sometimes in his presence, is not what we consider pleasant.

The work of Marie Shotwell, as the harlot of the first act, was remarkable. So was the bit by David Leonard, and the part played by Llumden Hare. Alfred Hickman, is a smaller role than he played in "The Passion Flower," distinguished himself as did Virginia Chauvenet as a helpless but hypocritical widow. Robert Williamson had but a moment, but made an impression. Alice Fischer was extremely amusing and Peggy Harvey, as a Spanish flapper, did clever work. Everybody in the cast deserves commendation.

People who live well take ice the year 'round

BY living well we mean getting the full flavor and nutriment out of food we eat. That need not mean expensive materials, but it does mean fresh food. It must be kept fresh.

Just as soon as food becomes stale — infected by bacteria—it loses that appetizing flavor which makes eating a pleasure and that wholesome quality which nourishes.

The only safe way to keep food from spoiling is to keep it in an even, dry cold. That means a well iced refrigerator the year 'round. At no season of the year can you keep food in prime condition in a cellar, pantry or out of doors.

through with her. Cronin was gone twenty minutes. When he brought my wife back, Sweeney took her. He was gone ten minutes. Both of them, my wife said, made indecent proposals to her in that time.

"We saw two uniformed police come up the road at that moment, and I called for help. Cronin went up to them, talked with them a few minutes, and then went away without paying any attention to my calls for help. Cronin threatened me with punishment if I persisted in calling for help.

"They took us out of our car and into another car that stood up the road. On Savin Hill, near Upham's Corner, Cronin took a bottle of whiskey that was in the car and asked me to drink some of it. I refused. He compelled me to drink some beer that was in another bottle. He said if I didn't drink the beer he would force it down my throat.

"Then he yanked Mrs. Bowley out of the car and pulled her down an embankment. They were gone twenty minutes, during which time I heard her call to me for help, but I was helpless with the twisters on my hands. When he returned with my wife, Sweeney took her down the embankment. He was gone ten minutes.

"During this time I saw four young men on a bridge nearby watching. I yelled out 'Help, save my wife!' Cronin went up and chased them away. Then he came back and struck me on the head with a club. Sweeney struck me in the face with his fists.

"I was helpless to defend myself. Cronin drew a gun, placed it against my head and told me that if I didn't keep my mouth shut he would blow out my brains.

"Then they drove us home. There he returned my pocketbook. I found only $5 of the $15 that had been in it. Cronin told me it would be better for me to forget the whole incident. But the next morning I went to the police and made a full report."

Following her husband's testimony, Mrs. Bowley took the stand to corroborate every detail she 'verified' the story he told. She said that the first time Cronin and Sweeney took her away from the car they had made indecent proposals to her. The second time Cronin took her away down the embankment, he overpowered her, she charged.

Sweeney, the second time, she said, made no effort to attack her as Cronin had done, but reiterated his former proposal.

In the will she provided that the wife of Bond should receive the property at the death of the last of her pets. The last pet died shortly after she did and the nephews and nieces are contesting the will, charging that she was not of sound mind at the time she made the document and that she was unduly influenced.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy — If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young — to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes — pimples — a bilious look in your face — dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

SEE HEAVY LOSS TO NATION IF PAY IS CUT

Washington, Nov. 1.—There can be no reduction in wages to the working man without great economic loss to the nation, the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Department of Labor, declared in citing the record of progress in the advance of the pay envelope toward the living wage.

This is the answer of the Government's greatest specialists in labor and industry to the majority ruling of the Chicago Railroad Labor Board deriding as impracticable the theory of "a living wage" to all workers.

During the last seven centuries, it was pointed out, there has been a steady, invariable gain in wages and never a retrograde movement.

WOULD AFFECT INDUSTRY.

Sound economic reason for this, it is cited, is that there can be no curtailment of wages without seriously affecting every industry, notably those of manufacturing and merchandising. American business if it is to continue, cannot afford to break the backbone of the buying public, it is declared.

"Of the 41,500,000 persons gainfully employed in the United States, 24,500,000, or nearly 60 per cent, are actual wage earners," the report of the Bureau of Labor Statistics says. "In this class are skilled workers, semi-skilled workers, laborers and servants.

"If to these one adds the nearly 14 per cent. engaged in clerical and kindred work, we have practically thirty and a half million, or 73 per cent. of all those gainfully employed on a wage, or weekly salary basis.

GREAT BUYING PUBLIC.

"Our workers are the great buying public. If they are enriched they are better buyers and so are a stimulant to both production and consumption. The manufacturer himself is prosperous only as his and all other wage earning employes are prosperous. The man who pays good wages is only paying himself good dividends.

"If wages were such that every one of the 7,057,283 women clerks and the wives and daughters of the 23,346,373 men clerks and wage-earners in the United States could buy another cotton dress, another woolen dress, another silk dress, the question of unemployment in the textile industry would be solved, as well as the question of better wages there.

No matter how far down.

It looks as though on Hallowe'en
We overdo the fun,
With windows broken, street lamps smashed
And firemen on the run;
For some folks can't behave themselves
But have to spoil the game

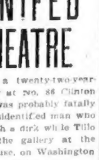
SKIPPER SUES SHIP BOARD FOR $1,000,000

Chicago, Nov. 1.—Suit for $1,000,000 damages has been filed in the United States District Court against the United States Shipping Board and the Munson Steamship Line by Captain B. T. Haagensen, formerly employed by the Munson Line. In the bill of complaint, Captain Haagensen charged that he had been blacklisted by the Munson Line and the Shipping Board. The blacklist, the bill alleges, followed a report he made of irregularities involving Shipping Board employes.

TILLO, BOXER, IS KNIFED AT THEATRE

Frank Tillo, a twenty-two-year-old boxer, living at No. 86 Clinton street, Chelsea, was probably fatally stabbed by an unidentified man who attacked him with a dirk while Tillo was seated in the gallery at the Grand Opera House, on Washington street, watching a boxing bout.

The assailant struck Tillo six times with his weapon, inflicting deep wounds in his back, abdomen, side and face.



Frank Tillo.

He then turned and, wriggling his way out between the astonished spectators escaped before he could be stopped.

Tillo is on the danger list at the City Hospital and is not expected to live. He said that he cannot name the man who attacked him, and insists that the stabbing resulted from a minor quarrel.

According to information given the police, Tillo and his friends were to stage a dance, for which they were selling tickets. Whenever a man refused to buy a ticket, it is said he was beaten by one of the gangsters. The man who stabbed Tillo is said to have refused to make a purchase and to have made the attack because he feared one would be made on him later.

REPUBLICANS HOLD BIG IRISH RADIO PLANT

Dublin, Nov. 1.—Republicans made a raid in Dublin today and attempted to burn the tax office, but were driven off.

Dublin, Nov. 1 (By International News Service.—Republicans today captured the Cliffden Wireless Station, one of the biggest in Great Britain. This was the second time the station has been held by Republican forces.

Free State troops are being massed in the region of Cliffden to attempt to retake the station. Following a lull of several weeks fighting is increasing in the provinces. Heavy firing was reported from the Dundalk and Cork areas, north and southwest of Dublin.

BOY KILLS GIRL AND SELF; WAS JEALOUS

Manistee, Mich., Nov. 1.—Loretta Redman, seventeen, and Nettie White, sixteen, who attended a Halloween party, came to a moonlit spot on the road near here when Ray E. Judd, seventeen, sweetheart of Nettie stepped from behind a thicket and fired several shots. One bullet entered the head of Miss Redman, killing her instantly. Another hit Miss White. Judd then fired a bullet through his brain. He is said to have quarreled with his sweetheart over her attentions to another man.

ARREST WOULD-BE CHELSEA MAYOR AT CRAP GAME

Autoist Says Girl Was Drunk and Not He GETS STOP SIGN IN COURT

Fined $150; Thinks Friends Left Liquor in Auto After Borrowing Car

Clarence Young's effort to blame it on the girl availed him nothing in Newton court today.

Clarence, who lives in Newton, declared that he was not intoxicated that he was not operating the automobile under influence of liquor, was not driving the machine, in fact.

He protested that his companion Miss Ethel Jones of Astor street, Back Bay, was driving the car, that it was she who was intoxicated and that he was trying to put her out of the car when the police arrived.

He averred too that the car had been loaned to friends the Saturday night before and that these friends must have left behind in the car the liquor that affected Miss Jones.

But Judge Keeon found Clarence guilty both ways. An intoxication charge and not him was filed. But on the count of "operating under the influence" Clarence was fined $150. He had only $25 on him. The court ordered him locked up until tomorrow, when the matter of payment will be taken up again.

But Miss Jones seemed to bear Clarence no ill-will, despite his efforts to switch the blame on her. She united with him pleasantly before leaving court.

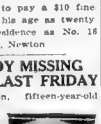
Clarence and Miss Jones came into police hands as result of telephone complaints to the Newton police by suburndale householders. The police found Clarence, the girl and the car.

In court today the girl said she was Ethel Jones of No. 55 Astor street, Back Bay, a milliner. She pleaded guilty to intoxication and was given time to pay a $10 fine.

Clarence gave his age as twenty four and his residence as No. 16 Glenwood avenue, Newton.

SCHOOLBOY MISSING SINCE LAST FRIDAY

Haseeb Semon, fifteen-year-old South End school boy, is missing from his home at No. 21 Melrose street. His father asked the police today to find him. He has an idea the lad may have gone to Worcester. Haseeb left home Friday morning, presumably to go to school, and has not returned.



HASEEB SEMON

PALLBEARER HIT BY TRUCK COULDN'T ACT

Cornelius O'Leary, seventy-five, section master for the Boston & Maine, today was injured when struck by an automobile truck while crossing Massachusetts avenue, Lexington Center. He was taken to his home No. 100 Woburn street, Lexington. O'Leary had intended to act as a pallbearer for Patrick Mansfield but was prevented by the accident.

Lawrence, Nov. 1.—John Garvin, thirty and married, of No. 24 Abbott street, fell four floors from the New Washington mill today. One eye was gouged out by protruding beams. He is at Lawrence General Hospital in a dying condition. He was employed by the Turner Construction Company.

Jumps From Taxi

MISS MARY WHALEN.

Chelsea girl had a quarrel with her escort after a Hallowe'en party and started home in a taxi, but jumped out of it and was found unconscious in Back Bay.

GIRL, 25, HURT IN LEAP

Jumps From Taxi After Quarrel; Refused to Go Home

Miss Mary Whalen, twenty-five years old, of No. 77 Library street, Chelsea, did not want to go home this morning after a Hallowe'en party, so she escaped from a taxicab hired by her escort to carry her there.

Some time later James E. Dunne of No. 219 Lamartine street, Jamaica Plain, the chauffeur, discovered his fare was missing, and retraced his path.

At Massachusetts and Common wealth avenues he saw Patrolman Govan bending over the unconscious form of the girl who apparently had either jumped or fell as she tried to alight and struck on her head.

Dunne took the officer and Miss Whalen to City Hospital.

DISPUTE IN GARAGE.

Dunne said he had seen at Murray's garage, No. 147 Warren avenue, Brookline, when Miss Whalen arrived in a car with William Hirshon of Buckminster street, Back Bay, who keeps two cars there. At the same time another machine a sedan arrived with a man and woman who seemed to be a brother and sister in law of Miss Whalen.

Hirshon, Dunne says, wanted to drive the girl to her home, but there was an argument which ended when the escort agreed to engage Dunne to take her to Chelsea. Came then another argument which stopped abruptly as a police officer appeared.

VANISHES FROM CAR.

Miss Whalen finally asked Dunne to take her home. As the machine neared Harvard bridge she begged the driver to stop, saying, "Don't go further. I am afraid to have my folks see me."

The chauffeur told police he stopped the car and argued with her for several minutes, after which it was agreed that he should drive to a restaurant and there telephone Hirshon for advice. It was while he was going to Massachusetts avenue and Boylston street that he missed the girl.

QUIZ LODGE, SAYS WALKER TO BIRD

Charles Sumner Bird who has been heckling Colonel William A. Gaston to come out with an attack upon former District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier, today received a letter from Joseph Walker asking him why he doesn't try the same scheme on Senator Lodge.

Walker said that Bird is evidently working overtime to embarrass Colonel Gaston if possible.

He said that anonymous cards urging the people to vote for Lodge and Pelletier have been circulated widely in Boston and Lodge hasn't "repudiated" them.

"Is Lodge seeking Pelletier votes?" asked Walker.

It is extremely unfair to be snapping at Colonel Gaston's heels Walker said, while allowing Lodge to be placed upon a pedestal where the average voter must not dare ask him anything about this campaign.

ENFIELD FARMER IS FLEECED OF $14,000

Springfield, Nov. 1.—Two strangers urged Walter Brown of Enfield, to put up $14,000 as part of a $50,000 "stock pool" and earn a profit equal to his investment.

After reading a list of names of neighbors supposed to have subscribed for varying amounts Brown withdrew $12,000 from his bank and added $2,000 worth of Liberty Bonds. Police are seeking the strangers, who claimed they were from a Springfield brokerage house.

DRY GOODS HIS LINE; MUST STICK TO IT

Aver Buch is a salesman of dry goods.

But he was fined $100 and sentenced to three months in City Court today for selling "wet" goods.

He sold Mrs Sarah Klebonow of Chandlers street a gallon of "moonshine."

The police advise Aver to stick to the dry line.

Boy of 11 Missing

Eleven-year-old Nathan Greenwood of No. 85½ Inman street, Cambridge, is missing from home. Nathan came home from Harvard Grammar School Monday afternoon, said hello to his brother, Abe, and shortly after disappeared. He wore a blue serge suit, khaki flannel blouse, gray tweed cap and glasses. He has dark hair and rosy cheeks.

Former Court Boy Takes Seat as Norfolk Judge

Judge Joseph R. McCool today sat for the first time as justice of Norfolk Probate Court where twenty-six years ago he started as an office boy.

The judge was appointed recently by Governor Cox to succeed Judge James H. Flint, who retired. Thomas N. Nash, new registrar of probate who is successor to Judge McCool, read the commission of office. The court was decked with flowers and many congratulated the new justice.

BARTLETT SAYS HE IS MODERN "NAPOLEON"

Alfred W. Bartlett, scheduled to go on trial November 14 for the murder of Frank E. Small, Dorchester druggist, believes he is the reincarnation of Napoleon.

Further he believes Bartlett believes that every man who walks the street is the reincarnation of some person of long ago. He has adopted the Bonaparte name and is convinced of the transmigration of souls.

ALFRED W. BARTLETT

Dr. Abraham Myerson and Dr. Douglas A. Thom alienists say in their report, "Bartlett is not insane or feeble-minded. He is a psychopathic personality, according to his own history a criminal from his early years."

While making public of the report Pelletier became known that Assistant District Attorney Henry P. Fiske and Attorney James J. O'Connell of Bartlett, had agreed to eliminate to dig into the prisoner's past history. It is understood he has had a checkered career in the state.

Small was shot to death in his drug store on Bowdoin street, Dorchester, when it is alleged Bartlett attempted to rifle a safe in the room.

'HUNCH' OF COP FOILS ROBBERS

Finds Store Unlocked and Goods Piled Up, Ready to Be Carried Off

A "plain hunch" perhaps some would call it mental telepathy—prevented burglars carrying away $8,000 worth of clothing in an automobile truck from the Berry Clothing Company store, No. 77 Harrison avenue, today.

Patrolman Charles A. Lewis of LaGrange street was trying the doors on his beat and arrived in Harrison avenue convinced all was not well. He traced his way along and he door at No. 77 was open.

Gun in hand Lewis put into the dark hallway only to come across sixty assorted overcoats piled high. At the same time was a noise in the rear of the building.

Running to the back door which opens on Knapp alley, he found traces of the burglars, one of the thieves and made away with more suits and a few overcoats.

Lieutenant Dunham of the 19th squad. Three officers recovered many suits and a few overcoats. Plenty evidence to indict on the rotters escaping, goods to part away virtually recovering valuable when frighten'd away by the arrival of Officer Lewis.

HALTS NON-SUPPORT CASE; MAN WEDS

Brockton, Nov. 1.—Charles H. Kleer, sixty-two years old, in court on a charge of non-support brought by his wife, he had declared six years ago, asked for a continuance.

"I am to be married at 2 o'clock," he explained. "I can't have this be put off somehow."

The court agreed and postponed the hearing.

The bride to be was Mrs. Carrie E. Lundard.

LLOYD GEORGE ILL, CANCELS SPEECHES

London, Nov. 1 (By International News Service).—Former Premier David Lloyd George is ill today with a cold which has settled in the throat, interfering with his campaign tour. He is under the care of Lord Dawson, private physician to King George. All the speeches for the next few days have been cancelled.

HOLD FUNERALS OF 4 TANK VICTIMS

Funeral services were held in Somerville today for three of the victims of the gasoline tank explosion Sunday. The victims were James J. Dwyer, fifteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Dwyer, Almer Leard, Jr., fourteen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Almer Leard, and Edward Fitzgerald, twelve, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fitzgerald, all of Prospect street.

Rev. Father James F. Sliney, curate of St. Joseph's Church, Somerville, where the boys attended Sunday School, officiated. Schoolmates and playmates attended. Burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery.

Services for Lawrence Allen, eleven years old, fourth victim of the explosion, were held from the home of his father, Patrick Allen, in Jamestown. Burial was in Pierpoint Cemetery.

GIRL DROPS DEAD PLAYING THE PIANO

Doris S. Cox was playing the piano. She raised her hand to her head, complained of a pain, collapsed and toppled to the floor. A physician declared her dead. The medical examiner said it was a case of pert curtinitis.

Doris was sixteen, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. Alexander Cox of No. 695 Central street, Cambridge. The doctor is a widely-known dentist. The funeral will be held tomorrow at 2.30, at Union Baptist Church, Cambridge.

JUDGE HALL STERN IN AUTO LIQUOR CASES

Worcester, Nov. 1.—Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall of the Superior Court today made it plain that he will not revoke the registry of motor vehicle operators whose licenses have been suspended for carrying liquor while under the influence of liquor.

His announcement came when Elmer H. Sweet pleaded guilty to driving a machine while under the influence of liquor. The court was told that he had a quart of liquor and a trap and jamgun in his automobile. Morton was told that he wished he had revoked his license permanently. The chief justice said "no" emphatically.

AMONG 3 TAKEN BY POLICE

One Pays Fine, but Lawyer Miller and Companion Secure Continuance of Case

You never can tell what's what in Chelsea politics.

Here's Lawyer Miller, candidate for Mayor in court on a charge of shootin' craps.

Miller says he never did. There will be another roll of the judicial dice Saturday when the case will come up on its merits.

Miller is a high-flier living in Avon street. He was defeated for Mayor two years ago and for Alderman last year. But he is up again for May now.

As the police tell it, some expert dispensers from Revere, who can load dice that'll bowl le down and stand back and say, "Twelve" and seven, have been defying into the open space back of the Locust street factories at noon hour and engaging the shipyard workers in shootin dice.

The police have jumped in occasionally but never quite in time. When the cops arrived the divers were gone or else were earnestly discussing the Einstein theory.

But the police figured out a new wrinkle. They came yesterday dressed in an air motor. They swooped down on a game as they now say, and captured in three automobiles three.

The three were Candidate Miller, Abraham Bronstein of Everett avenue, Chelsea, and Louis Manoli of Vassal street, Back Bay.

In Chelsea Court today Bronstein pleaded guilty to craps and paid part of a $10 fine. The other five dollars is later on Friday.

But Miller and Manoli pleaded not guilty and secured continuances to Saturday.

DOWNEY RESTORED AS NORTH EASTON CHIEF

North Easton, Nov. 1.—Chief of Police Thomas Downey has been reinstated. At a meeting of the prudential committee held by more than 400 citizens seeking such action was received. The chief was removed last week after it was charged that he had used insulting language to a woman and had beaten up Timothy Cotter, a member of the prudential committee.

CHIEF DOWNEY

$100 FINE FOR HAVING RUM IN 'BRIEF CASE'

"That's a mighty nice briefcase that man's carrying," Patrolman Lehan quoth to himself as he watched a man walking briskly along Border street in West Newton today. He followed on for a spell.

Lehan found the "brief case" held a metal container of two-gallon capacity and full to its screw-cap with rum.

The "lawyer" was Samuel Lighter of Roxbury. In Newton court Lighter admitted "keeping and exposing liquor for sale" and was fined a week's time to pay a $100 fine.

AUTOIST, IN 4 QUICK COLLISIONS, APPEALS

Allan W. McEvoy of East Bridgewater, Wednesday, lost the Sullivan square section of Charlestown interested for a time, while the car he was driving collided with a physician's auto, a street car, a brick wall on Dorrance street, and a tree, in the order named according to the police. In the Charlestown court today he drew a $1 fine for drunkenness and six months in the House of Correction for driving under the influence of liquor, from both of which he appealed. The only serious damage was to his own car.

TENANT DEFIES LANDLADY TO MOVE MOTHER

"I'll lock the doors. They will have to break them down. My mother is too sick to be moved even a mile."

With this assertion as her final word Mrs. Fannie Cohn of Chelsea will be prepared today to oppose an effort of Landlady Mrs. Mullin and her constable to put the landlady to move them out or to move on the landlady's furniture.

The wife mother is Mrs. Rose Atkins and Cohn families occupy the middle apartment in the three-family house owned by Mrs. Mullin of Arlington street, Chelsea.

Mrs. Cohn says that an agreement was reached whereby the two families were to be allowed to remain there a month longer on account of the mother's illness, but that the landlady insisted that she be allowed to put her own furniture in. Mrs. Cobb objected, she says, to this arrangement because the noise and confusion would be bad for her mother.

Mrs. Cobb also declares that the landlady came to the house when no one was there but Mrs. Atkins and knocked on the door and demanded admittance until Mrs. Atkins got up, took three steps and fainted away.

RIVAL CAN KEEP WIFE, BUT NOT CHILDREN

Nicholas Pepe of Brighton street, East Boston, appeared today in the East Boston police station and asked help to find Gino Farro of the North End.

He was asked why he desired to communicate with Mr. Farro.

"He took my daughter. He—she's four; my son Gerard, he is a mulatto, and my baby William, who is sixteen months old. He can keep my wife, but I want my children back."

He said that neighbors told him when he returned from his work that day that Farro, who had been his most intimate friend, had arrived in an automobile early in the morning, shortly after he had left for work. Several hours later, he had been informed, Ferro, Mrs. Pepe and the children, plus a lot a baggage, had come out of the house and driven away in the car.

BRITTON BIG FAVORITE OVER WALKER TO WIN TITLE BOUT

OLD MAN OF THE RING DOES NOT FEAR BOY

By JACK CONWAY.

New York, Nov. 1—An old man against a kid! And half a million dollars as the prize!

That's what you'll have when Jack Britton totters into the ring with youthful Mickey Walker as an opponent in a fifteen round bout to a decision at Madison Square Garden, New York tonight.

Britton admits he is thirty-seven years of age, which probably borders more closely on forty. Walker is twenty-two.

It would have been possible for one as old as Britton to have a boy twenty years younger.

Even though there is a difference of at least fifteen years in the ages of the two men, the grand old dope says Britton will be successful in hiding his title behind his whiskers that is. The intellectual gentlemen who have the "inside" slant on affairs of the ring are of the opinion that Britton will be able to stagger around long enough to outpoint the young man from Elizabeth, N. J.

It is natural, of course, that Britton should lose every time. Britton has been winning for so long that it does not appear as though he were going to experience a setback to-night.

This writer has been a defying Jack knock down the opposition for twelve years. He first gained national prominence when he knocked out Eddie Murphy of South Boston at the old Boston Arena. At that time Murphy had quite a reputation as a fighter as a result of two tough bouts with Packey McFarland. He went to the post a 10 to 4 favorite over Britton, but was carried from the ring when the present welterweight champion finished shooting left and right hand thrusts in the direction of the enemy.

Ted Lewis Was Able to Make It Interesting

Ted (Kid) Lewis, at one time was able to make things interesting for Britton, in fact he won the title from Jack in a decision bout only to be later knocked out by the latter vanquished.

During the past few years accident Jack has not experienced a great deal of trouble turning back the kind of opposition that has been tossed at him.

Boxing science and ring generalship have carried him to many victories.

"It will take a youngster with a punch and a knowledge of boxing to beat Britton," said Jack Bulger, manager of Walker.

Bulger then started his drive after Britton. He removed the champion and forced him to sign for a tussle with Mickey.

Walker's Manager Says Mickey Will Win

"Walker will be champion after tonight's bout," said Bulger today. "Mickey wallops too hard for the venerable Jack," continued Bulger, "and he will surely get him in 10 of the fifteen rounds. Even if he doesn't score with a knockout, he will be out front when the battle ends.

"Walker won't set the pace for Britton from the start. As champion, Jack will have to do a little fighting himself to keep favor with the crowd.

"Mickey will take things easy for the first five rounds and thus prevent Britton from shooting over a wild punch that might slow up the challenger.

After Five Rounds Jack Will Begin to Tire

"After five rounds, Britton will begin to tire. Then Walker will start his battle. He will punch, punch, punch.

"You may tell Boston and New England fans that Mickey is a great boy, supported as a boxer. He will need many of Britton's wallop, while he himself will count with heavy, sharp smashes to the head and body.

"Sooner or later Walker is bound to break through Britton's defense, and if he does it will be good night for the champion.

"The title is worth at least half a million dollars to Walker, and he's going to make it pay."

Britton's Manager Says That Jack Will Win

Tom (Lil) Duffy Morgan, manager of Britton and nobody very different remarks:

"Britton will win. That's my statement and I shall stand by it.

We agree with Daniel, which will probably be welcome news to Britton's mentor. It is seldom that we have held the same view on things outside of Britton's remarkable skill as a boxer.

There will be a tremendous crowd in hand for the conflict. The great sporting population of the metropolis is eager to get a glimpse of Britton wonder team off the ring, who was a champion when most of our present day ring kings were parading around in short trousers.

Then there are the regular, every day fight fans who admire Britton as a boxer and desire to be down with by the ring every time he starts.

Most important, though, will be the boys from New Jersey. They will take New York by storm tonight.

Who will they root for?

Mickey Walker!

Walker, twenty-two, and every inch a fighting man, is an Irish American. Maybe that's why he is such a good fighter.

Mickey Realizes the Odds Against Him

Mickey realizes the odds he will be obliged to face tonight. He knows what it's up against. Britton is back. has already under the ring glare with Britton in the ring corner. That match was staged in Newark, N. J., more than a year ago. Britton got the decision in the first round and was knocked out. But Mickey came back. He weathered the storm and was later awarded after a gallant battle.

Jack Conway Says Britton Will Keep His Title

72		11

You may let your last chunk of coal ride on Britton tonight.

He'll burn his way to victory in his battle with Mickey Walker at the Garden.

Britton at thirty-seven (and possibly older) is still able to stand on a handkerchief and outbox the opposition. Most ring men are done at twenty-eight to thirty, but Britton seems to carry on indefinitely. He's got Father Time's number.

If Walker could count with right-hand socks to the jaw tonight, he would win the title. But he won't be able to do so. That's why Britton is the king of his division.

As for the Stanislaus Zbyszko-Binckley wrestling bout, our tip is that big Zibby will take the honors.

P. C. .867

TRAVERS BEATS SUGGS ON POINTS

Chick Suggs, New England's featherweight champion, is still the dictator in our feather class, though Mickey Travers was awarded the decision over him at the Grand Opera House.

Vic Richardson posted $800 with Jack Conway that Travers would weigh 126 pounds ringside. According to reports he weighed 123½ at 3 o'clock, but when requested to step on the scales going into the ring tipped the beam at 127 pounds.

Manager David Luminansky, for Suggs, agreed to allow the bout to go on after an announcement to the effect that the title was not at stake. Suggs and his manager decided also, to allow Richardson to draw down his forfeit. Suggs was well under the weight.

When the opponents hopped into the ring it was evident that the New Haven Italian was several pounds heavier than the colored youth. To many it looked as though Travers was close to the lightweight figure.

Travers tore after Suggs at the gong and quickly gave evidence that the strategy board had decided to take advantage of the difference in poundage. He remained on the offensive during the greater portion of the fast exhibition, Suggs boxed on the defensive and counted often.

Travers landed a number of hard left hooks and on a couple of occasions shook up the colored stepper. Suggs scored with left jabs and right cross in every round, and seemed to earn a draw despite his weight disadvantage.

Preceding the main bout was one of the greatest bits of fighting handed the action lovers in many months. Frankie Merna of South Boston, recent punching sensation of the amateurs, was pitted against Eddie Lawry, who claims Malden as his home.

The boys stood toe to toe for eight rounds, Lawry taking enough punishment on the chin to have a regiment. The harder Merna sent 'em in, the faster Eddie came back. The crowd was on its feet in every round and when the final gong sounded Merna, though an easy winner, looked received.

Larry Robinson, Cambridge, hung a knock on Jackie Ryan, South Boston, in one round. Paddy McCarr, a New Bedford colored entry, was awarded the decision over Harry Foley, North End.

Jonny Walsh was referee.

FANS INTERESTED IN INSTITUTE TOURNEY

Boxing fans of Greater Boston are showing great interest in the third amateur open boxing meeting which will be held under the auspices of the East Cambridge Institute at Institute Hall, Cambridge street, tomorrow evening. Four class a will be contested at 112 pounds, 118 pounds (middle), 135 pounds and 158 pounds. Bernard J. Fox is in charge and those desiring to send in entries should mail them to him at Institute Hall, Cambridge.

WINTHROP TO PLAY WOBURN AT HOCKEY

Winthrop will play Woburn in an important Greater Boston Interscholastic Girls' Field Hockey League game this afternoon at Winthrop.

A victory for the beach girls will place them well on the road to an other championship and the permanent ownership of the Durrell trophy.

Midget Teams Will Play

The McAllister School midgets will play the Fay School midgets in Southboro this afternoon.

Ken Simendinger to Be a Holy Cross Coach

Worcester, Nov. 1.—It is reported that Ken Simendinger, the Holy Cross backfield mainstay, will be on the coaching staff at Mt. St. James next year. Simendinger will be ineligible to play on the eleven next year, as he has already played four years of collegiate football, one year on the Lehigh eleven, and this is his third year of service for the Purple.

CALZA TO SHOW IN FIRST BOUT AT G. O. H.

George Kotsoparas, the Greek ex wrestling fans, is back from a trip to his home land and will make his first appearance of the Grand Opera House tomorrow evening when he tackles Mort Henderson.

The Italian is in fine shape, though heavier than when he left here. A large delegation will turn out to welcome him.

George Calza, the idol of the Italian champion and Mike Rovezzo another Italian light heavyweight, will come together in the semi-final bout while in the curtain raiser Stanley Slosiak the great Pole will tackle George Prindle of Wisconsin.

TECHNOLOGY TO RUN AGAINST PRINCETON

Technology will meet Princeton in a dual cross country at Princeton Saturday. This will be the first race between the two institutions for nearly a score of years.

The early season performances of the easterners has already marked them as a formidable aggregation. Their victory over Coach Moakley's intercollegiate champions at Cornell had given them prestige and their performance at Belmont last week, when they beat both Harvard and Tech in a triangular race, was a fine test of their abilities.

Coach Frank M. Kansly has put his men through a very intensive week of training and is keeping them in top form for the Tiger race. Seven runners and a substitute will probably make the trip to Princeton, as the agreement with the Tigers calls for a seven-man team. The first seven Tech runners to score in the triangular race last week will make up the team. W. L. Keplinger, who was the fourth engineer to finish at Cornell, will probably also be included. Keplinger did not run in the triangular meet because of leg injury.

CASTLE FIGHTS SUGGS IN SALEM FEATURE

On Friday night at Salem, Mike Castle, the boy who beat Bobby Lyons, will meet Chick Suggs in the main bout. K. O. Joe O'Brien of Roxbury and Young Rodrick will clash in an eight-round semi final, while Kid Pippin and Whitey Walsh come together in a six-rounder. Jamie Madenson and Al Leahy will open the show in the first six-round bout.

Lexington Beats Watertown

The Lexington High school Girls' eleven swamped Watertown, 6 to 0, in the first field hockey game ever played on Victory Field, Watertown.

BIG MATMEN BATTLE IN ALL-STAR SHOW

Boston wrestling fans get their first chance tonight to see Cliff Binckley, the much touted heavyweight star with the unbeaten record, unless one counts the loss of a match to Lewis under the New York commission freak rules a defeat, and who, later battled Lewis to standstill for the world's title and broke even at the end.

Frank Judson.

Binckley is paired with Stanley Zbyszko in a finish match, best two out of three falls, as the principal number of Promoter Tuohey's all-star carnival in Mechanics Building, and there is no tougher test for a youthful aspirant to the World's title than a battle with Zbyszko.

The Pole, when right, is capable of taking cars of any of them, and if one judges by the way he has worked for to night's battle they know that he is right and at his best, and that means a battle from beginning to end.

Cliff Binckley

The men will go best two out of three falls, under American Association rules, to a positive finish, with the provision that if the contest extends beyond two hours one fall will suffice.

Neither man feels that the affair will last that long as each hopes to set a fast clip from start to finish.

The appearance of Frank Judson (Indianski) is also awaited with interest and his work will be closely watched. He faces Soldier Leavitt, who displaces Elmer Sanders, who bowed off because of a case of boils. It appears as though all Somerville is interested in the battle between Billy Goodland and Tommy Record, the welterweight champion, who will try to wipe out the defeat Goodland handed him last Winter.

WRESTLING PROGRAM.

Tommy Record vs Billy Goodland, one fall to win.

Frank Judson, vs Soldier Leavitt, one fall to win.

AMATEUR RING STARS BATTLE FOR HONORS

The boxing spotlight will be turned on the trophy chasers of the amateur division of ring stars tonight when the St. Joseph's T. A. B. stages its semi-monthly tournament at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin square.

With the heavyweight boxers making their first appearance of the season, the fans have something to look forward to. At least six heavyweights will participate in this class.

In addition to the heavyweights the fans will be treated to two novice classes.

Two open classes, the 126 and 135 pound divisions are also on the card and as there is a big entry list there will be plenty of fighting.

HOLY CROSS STARTS FOR SOUTH THURSDAY

Worcester, Nov. 1.—The Holy Cross team will leave Worcester for Washington, where they will give battle to the Georgetown eleven next Saturday on the 7:05 p. m. train tomorrow.

As yet the members of the team that will make the trip have not been announced, but Coach Cleo O'Donnell will take a large squad along to be on the safe side.

The eleven will put in a lot of time on Friday practicing in the Washington American League Club's Baseball Park.

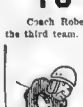
COACH FISHER SENDS ROSCOE FITTS TO THE THIRD ELEVEN

HARVARD STAR WANTS TO PLAY HALFBACK

Coach Robert T. Fisher of Harvard has demoted Roscoe Fitts to the third team.



Roscoe's spanking is a direct result of his work in the Dartmouth game. It is felt that Fitts, who is one of the stars on the Harvard eleven, has been taking it easy on the end job, which he took over during the early part of the season when Percy Jenkins was injured.

Now that he is a wingman, Roscoe does not like it, and is showing it, for unless it was insubordination, or bad football, he would not find himself back in the woods. He is a player of ability.

At Cambridge it is believed to be a case of temperament.

Ask a Harvard football fan, who is the better end, Fitts or Jenkins, and he will reply "Fitts could be, but Jenkins is."

It is true that it is difficult to make an end of a player who spent five years of his life as a halfback. That much can be said for Fitts, but it is the lack of sportsmanship shown by the former Huntington School and Tufts player that causes criticism.

Jenkins Is Logical Choice to Take Fitts' Place.

Jenkins is the logical choice to take Fitts' place. He played a whale of a game against Dartmouth. He intercepted a forward pass and made Harvard's only touchdown of the game as a result. He is thoroughly equipped to handle a punt.

He is the fastest man on the Harvard squad. He is in earnest about paying wing, despite the fact he started his Harvard football career as a candidate for the backfield.

One Harvard man who knows Fitts said he wants to get into the backfield again, where the grandstand will notice him.

This seems to be the sentiment of the whole Harvard football machine toward the insubordinate Harvard player. On the other hand, Roscoe is well fitted for backfield work. He is a better punter than Gehrke, who has carried the major portion of the Crimson booting work this Fall. Fitts punts high and slowly and has good distance, while Gehrke punts low, fast and for exceptionally long distances.

One Criticism of the Harvard-Dartmouth Game.

One of the criticisms of the Harvard-Dartmouth game was that the Harvard ends did not get down under the punts, which enabled the diminutive Dartmouth quarterback Halsey Mills, to return with the ball for the great gains he has shown in taking the end job and making the most of it. Jenkins is thoroughly capable of handling the Crimson left end.

Owen's Schoolmate Eligible for Harvard

Sunny Pinkham, a teammate of George Owen at Newton High, has once again become his football associate.

Pinkham, who originally was of the class of 1924, dropped back to the class of 1925. This move made him eligible to play for Harvard.

Immediately on learning this the Harvard coaches took Sunny up from the second team where the ineligibles battle against the varsity.

from his childish attitude he would be of inestimable value to the Harvard plan. As it is he is locked up in his room until the bosses see fit to let him out.

It is by far the most radical bit of punishment that has been meted to a Crimson gridster in years. It is a grave question whether he will be back in the good graces of the coaches before the Princeton game.

If he does get back into the line up will he be an end or a halfback? It is the hope of many Harvard men that he will be a halfback, not to gratify his whims, but on account of the fact that without a doubt he is of most value in the Crimson back yard.

Harvard men would like to see Jenkins play end as a reward, not only for his playing, but for the whole heartedness he has shown in taking the end job and making the most of it. Jenkins is thoroughly capable of handling the Crimson left end.

ELI'S COACHES WORRY ABOUT THE BRUINS

By CHARLES E. PARKER

Pliny, the elder, who passed out wise cracks 1900 years ago, made the following observation:

"Bears when first born are shapeless masses of white flesh a little larger than mice, their claws alone being prominent. The mother then licks them, gradually into proper shape."

Ob Bartas, some years later, O'Kayed Pliny's claim as follows:

"But after licking it in shape she cleanes
"And up decores a so fashionable suit the games.
"The head and neck, and shaggie lush being "In a perfect beast that first detested."

Bob Burton (Lou Hebo) and several others of more recent times, freely admit Pliny called the turn on bears.

Consequently if you happen to come across a husky man wearing a corrugated brow, know then that he has been reading up on bears in preparation for the visit to New Haven on Saturday of the Bears from Brown University, and he's worried.

There is reason for him to worry for if Hinkey does a right as applied to the Brown Bruins and to a lesser degree it has proved to be.

Brown Bears' Claws Have Been Doing Big Business

To date the most prominent thing about the Brown Bears have been their claws. Those claws have been doing a great business. Everything they lassoed into got mangled up with the result that but one back-field man has been found against them.

Not that for they have not been tested to the proper shape. That is being attempted this week and as the lickers are such experienced souls as Ed Robinson and Fritzie Brown, it is a reasonably safe bet that the paws, head, neck, etc., as well as the claws of the Brown Bears will be functioning properly in the Yale Bowl Saturday.

Brown men have been rather disappointed in the Bears thus far this year. They thought the "shape two mauler" with which Coach Robinson and Brown have been working constituted the most promising material these alma maters had had in years, and they expected immediate and soul satisfying results in the form of walkaway victory over Rhode Island State and Colby and a sure enough triumph over Syracuse, and, what is not to be overlooked, the smothering of Boston University and when none of those materialized, they became so peeved that they couldn't appreciate just what the coaches were doing.

Syracuse Game Loomed Big in Brown Program

The Syracuse game, of course, loomed big on the Brown program, but not nearly so large as do the Yale, Harvard and Dartmouth games which are about to follow one another in rapid succession, and Coached Robinson and Brown figured they could well afford developing a sturdy defense before stressing the Brown attack, and the fact it held the ponderous and powerful Syracuse eleven to a scoreless tie, and was scored upon but once, and that luckily in the other games played thus far, speaks volumes for the effectiveness of Brown's defense.

And this week the Bruin offense in the hands of Coach Robinson and Fritzie Brown has been tried out at the Brown attack, and the fact it held the ponderous and powerful Syracuse eleven to a scoreless tie, and was scored upon but once, and that luckily in the other games played thus far, speaks volumes for the effectiveness of Brown's defense.

And this week the Bruin offense in the hands of Coach Robinson and Fritzie Brown has been tried out at the Brown attack, and the fact Robinson as excellent a job in that department of play as they have done in the other, Brown will c at least one of its future l games and may capture all of the, and if the latter transpires Bro will be right up there with a cla for the Eastern football champio ship.

Accounts Would Indicate Elis Have Not Progressed

We have not seen Yale in acti since the lowa triumph at the ba but accounts would indicate would not indicate that the Elis ha progressed a great deal. Sever changes in the lineup have b made and several may be made t week, but Yale has such an abu ance of excellent material, that changes simply bring new faces int play, they do not seem to improv the play of the team.

Brown can be reasonably sure of encountering eleven except about players, not, however, playing exceptional football, for the tale ev ten, thus far, has not taught th that brand of play.

In the words of Jimmy, the off boy, "Yale still is a sucker for ta ward passes." The Army completed five out of six, and for big gains la week. And Yale still has to learn what to do when the other team pu the ba

Yale and Iowa to Play Again in 1923

By Universal Service.

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 1.—Yale has invited Iowa, which beat the Blue, 6 to 0, a fortnight ago, to play here again next Fall in answer, it is expected, will be received in a short time.

The invitation shows conclusively that the agreement of the presidents of the so-called "Big Three" did not bar intersectional games during the regular season, but merely barred post-season games for Yale, Harvard and Princeton.

GALVARISKI IS TUFTS' ONLY CRIPPLE

The return to the Tufts squad of several players who were on Dr McLane's hospital list has brightened the prospects for victory over Middlebury on Saturday.

Instead of the usual long list of cripples who have greeted Coach Casey every Monday, the only crippe as a result of the Wesleyan game is Stan Galvariski, with a bad knee.

Carl Eiselman, Chandnet, Earl Thompson and Shaw are ready to work once more, so Tufts should present a much stronger lineup this week than the Jumbo was able to muster against Wesleyan.

It is expected that Middlebury will prove a hard nut to crack, comparative scores the Green Mountain eleven appears to have an edge on Tufts. Tufts was pushed to the limit to defeat Norwich by one touchdown, but Middlebury took them into camp to the tune of 20 to 0.

This seeming superiority in scoring power may be discounted by the sturdy defence of the Medford boys. Wesleyan scored two touchdowns but both came as a result of fumbles and not through any ability to gain ground through the Tufts forwards.

Coach Casey is dissatisfied with the way his backfield men have been running. Many times the line opens up holes through which a fast back should gain but the brown and Blue backs failed to take advantage of these openings. They have been slow in getting started and many times ran into their own interference.

B. C. MUST PLAY HARD TO BEAT VILLANOVA

Another Pennsylvania eleven will invade Boston this week end when the Villanova team clashes with Boston College at Braves Field on Saturday. Villanova will be represented by one of the strongest teams in its history, and is anxious to repeat the performance of Lafayette.

Because it has not occupied the centre of the football stage is no reason why Villanova should be shed cheaply. Coach Miller has developed a team that surprised the Holy Cross eleven by holding it to two hard earned touchdowns. Hayden Villanova defeated the powerful Catholic University team by a score of 14 to 6, holding the opponents to two first downs.

The visitors are coming to Boston with more than hopes of victory. They feel confident that they can hold firm against the onslaughts of the Eagle backfield, and are developing an attack which they believe will enable them to triumph over Boston College.

Thinks Eagle Weak Against Aerial Attack

Coach Miller considers that the Eagle is weak against a well-developed aerial attack. He is therefore concentrating his efforts to perfect his team in this style of play. He thinks, also, that the Boston C. team is not well versed enough in the overhead game to threaten from that angle.

The Villanova line is undoubtedly strong as its record seems to prove. It is can hold back Wardand Cronin, who have done much of the ball dunging for Boston College, the visitors will have a fairly even chance of taking back a victory.

Daly, who plays quarterback for Villanova, is reputed to be an excellent drop kicker, and a fast man on end runs of the ends. It is likely that Villanova will depend on Daly's ability to drop the ball over the crossbars to overcome the Eagle, should the aerial attack fail.

Fullback McLaren Is First-Class Line Smasher

Fullback McLaren is a first-class line smasher, and the best point scorer on the team. He is expected to be a big help to the visitors in breaking down the B. C. defence.

The Eagle regulars had their first practice session, Coach Cavanaugh is preparing his team injured since for the Villanova contest, which he considers will be a good test before the Baylor game but practice this week and next will be principally for preparation for the big game with the Baylor Bears for Texas on the following Saturday.

Donnellan Will Be Called On to Punt

Charley Donnellan called the signals in practice, and although "Chuck" Darling is improving, fast enough will hardly risk him in the game against Villanova. Donnellan is practicing punting every afternoon, as he will be called on to do most of the kicking now that Darling is out.

Howe will play fullback on Saturday, but in the Baylor game it is probable that Coach Cavanaugh will shift Darling to fullback and keep Donnellan at quarter. The Baylor team that plays Boston College this year is made up of eleven regulars who played against the Eagles last Fall.

For this reason, Coach Cavanaugh will have to so arrange his backfield that it will be as strong as he can possibly make it.

B. U. ELEVEN STRENGTHENS FOR GREEN

Coach Connell's warriors from the Green Mountains of New Hampshire will be the next aggregation that "Doc" Whelan's Boston University gridiron squad will tackle. By all reports the Dartmouth coach has gotten the team into such fighting spirit that they are looking for real opposition.

Dartmouth will meet a foe in Boston University whose spirit is equal to its own and a very interesting all around afternoon is assured. Boston University has a couple on hand to call on except Rick O'Hare, and he is doing his full share in the line this year.

Boston University will put the strongest team possible on the field several new men have been developed and others have been tried in different positions. Friday, who played tackle last year, has been having end and is making good at his job. Carson has been showing up well at guard and will prove a valuable substitute in the backfield. Johnson the freshman star has been tried out at the end position and is a good prospect.

Adrians Want Games

The Adrians of Roxbury, owing to cancellation are without a game for Sunday and would like to hear from some team in New England [illegible] Jack Plimpton, Roxbury, [illegible] after 7 p.m.

WESLEYAN FIT FOR BIGGEST HOME GAME

Middletown, Nov. 1.—With the victory over Tufts to spur Wesleyan on, Coach Martin turns all his attention to the game with Amherst here Saturday—the biggest home game of the season, and the first of the series which will decide the championship of the "Little Three" this year.

On paper, Wesleyan looks to have a decided advantage, but it is a tradition among the "Little Three" that the season never really begins until Amherst plays Wesleyan in the first of the three games.

Any one of the three colleges, Wesleyan, Amherst and Williams, would be willing to lose all its other games, if it could only win from its two foremost rivals.

So far this season, Amherst has lost to Bowdoin, Columbia, Massachusetts Aggies and Oberlin, and has won only one game, that with Union, not a very brilliant record.

Wesleyan, on the other hand, has been particularly successful, and has defeated Union, Bowdoin, Hobart and Tufts, and has lost only to Columbia. Wesleyan defeated Bowdoin, which had already won from Amherst, beat Union by a larger score than did the sons of Lord Geoffrey, and held the heavy Columbia team to ten points.

GREEN COACHES BUILD FOR CORNELL

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 1.—Dartmouth's squad tore through an unusually long and hard session, which ended in a half hour's vicious scrimmage from which only varsity regulars were exempted.

The coaches started the drive for the Cornell game with promises of lots of work in the next ten days with the season an indication of what is to be expected.

The schedule makers have somewhat upset Coach Cannell's plans for a few days' rest between the Harvard and Boston University games and all the coaches have a feeling that B. U. may prove a tartar for the Green just as Vermont did before the Harvard game.

So that Dartmouth may not be forced to taste its third defeat of the season the Green leaders are keeping an eye on Saturday's game while they work up to the Cornell game, the high point of the season in the New York Polo Grounds on Armistice Day.

Several new plays, on new formations, were given the squad Monday, additions to the offence will be made today and Dartmouth will try the new stuff out on B. U. this week. The coaches spent most of the after noon on signals, working up the different forms of play as they have

Getting Our Love Notes in Print Before We Are Murdered

By Nat D. Dorfman

As we expect to get murdered some day by either a jealous woman or man, we haven't just yet decided on this point, not knowing which of the two will get wise to our carrier pigeon ruse, we are going to beat the reports to it by having our love letters printed in advance of the tragedy.

The following letters are only a few of the fervent love notes that have passed between our sweetheart and ourself. We have carefully explained all hidden points so there can't be a slip-up. We are keeping the better ones in the hopes some moving picture company will want us to sign up in a film drama. So here goes:

Dear B.—(Explanatory note—B stands for the second letter in the alphabet and also for Beauty, my pet name for the lady of my dreams).

"It is twelve o'clock (mid-night, not at noon). No one is about. M is asleep upstairs (M is Martha, my wife). Her heavy breathing chills me and I know you'll excuse me for not keeping the stove going all night, but how can I afford to when I took a tip from the sporting writers and bet my all on the Yankees?

"My heart is lonesome—oh, so lonesome. I would like to crush you—for the foolish way you acted at the party last night. (Name and address of place where this happened can be furnished on request.) I was so mad over it. M noticed I wasn't my usual self, for she said: 'How natural you are for a change!'

"I know you are awake and thinking of me—I know it because you only just called me on the telephone and told me so yourself. Oh, dearest woolkins, how wonderful it is to write this note to you knowing it will all come out in the papers very soon when we can read it together. I dare not write any more now. M's breathing is getting lighter, so I suspect she's about to get up.

"Yours with oceans of love,

"OATS."

(Note—B always called me Oats because when I aggravated her she said I reminded her of a horse, I nagged so)

In order to show that we are absolutely impartial in this thing and that we do not want to cabbage all the publicity for ourselves, we herewith present the answer to the above letter. It came just ten minutes after ours was delivered by aeroplane.

"Honeyest love boy:

"Your intelligent letter has upset me terribly. Never before have I been so stirred by what you have written me. It is indeed a revelation.

"My love of love, my dream of dreams, where will it all end? I know I said this in the opening paragraph, but it sounds so mysteriously, so hopeless a quotation that I delight in repeating it over and over again. If I bore you, forgive me.

"Meet me at the old oaken bucket tomorrow. They will serve it there in spite of Volstead (We can't reveal this place until we're both dead, as we don't care to be killed in the rush).

"I must close now with bunches of warm kisses.

"Yours forever,

"B."

NEWLYWED WAILS

COLUMBUS proved that the earth was round, but many a wife has made her husband feel flat in it.

Some men are natural born flirts, while others had the winking habit forced on 'em by prohibition.

When a wife says she wants only pin money to go shopping with, the chances are she'll stick him with the b_ll later on.

When people fall in love they call it a match, and so all their well wishers stand on the sidelines to see it burn out.

Woman, says a philosophee, is like bootleg whiskey. Both come high and have enough kick in 'em to knock a man silly.

Most women have a knack of keeping their age well—to themselves.

When a fellow tells a girl he could die waltzing with her he only means until the last notes die away and nothing else.

Tell a man about a paradise on earth and instantly he thinks of somebody's bachelor quarters.

IN WHEWTOPIA

By Les Conklin.

WHEN Dink Butts lived in Whewtopia he was never out of debt. He owed everybody but the undertaker.

Dink always did what he pleased at the Whewtopia boarding house. He owed the landlady so much money that she couldn't afford to kick him out.

The storekeepers in Whewtopia never sent Dink a bill because it was only a waste of time and paper.

Nobody was sorry to see Dink clean up in a poker game because it enabled him to pay off some of his debts.

The nearest that Dink ever came to getting out of debt was when the Elks elected him treasurer.

At the Fourth of July exercises in the public square Dink was supposed to give a talk on "What I Owe Whewtopia." His speech took so long that the other speakers had to be crossed off the program.

They Had Met

Smith and Brown owned adjoining farms. Brown had just moved in and did not know his neighbor.

Going over his farm, he discovered a crow eating the corn, and not knowing that it was Smith's pet crow he shot it.

Smith, hearing the shot, rushed out and, upon discovering his dead crow, picked up Brown's gun and forced him to eat a few of the bird's feathers. When he thought he had punished Brown sufficiently he laid down the gun and said they would call it square.

Brown immediately picked up the gun and compelled Smith to eat a similar amount of feathers.

The next day the two met at the home of a third neighbor, who remarked: "I suppose you two fellows are acquainted?"

"Oh yes," replied Brown. "We dined together yesterday."

ONCE OVERS

ARE YOU CURSED WITH FEAR?

"Fear is the curse of mankind," someone has said.

You do not branch out for yourself because you fear that you might not be able to meet expenses.

Often you are afraid to stand up for your principles, the principles you know are right, just because you fear that someone may be displeased.

You entertain fear that you may not live long.

You worry because you feel that you would lose your home if you lost your job, and perhaps all your hard earned savings would go before you got another job.

You are constantly fearful about your children—they might get hurt.

In Winter, you worry every time you go to bed at night, because you think what a terrible thing it would be if the house should catch on fire.

You live in constant dread and fear of thieves and burglars.

You have a little pain and immediately you fear it is a forerunner of some fatal disease.

Worrying about things won't help you, but makes you an easier mark for the thousand and one things you fear.

THE SONG OF THE SKIRT

By Jane McLean

NO longer will the flapper flap
On Tremont street all day,
No longer will the eyes of man
Demurely downward stray.
For Fashion's sent her edict forth
That dimpled knees must hide,
And fatted calves must browse unseen
Although their owners' pride.
They used to say, not long ago,
If women had the vote,
They'd beard old Custom in his den
And wring his tyrant throat.
Old Custom grinned and ordered skirts
To heights unknown before;
And women cried with loud acclaim,
"We'll sweep the streets no more!"
Old Custom frowns, and down come skirts,
For better or for worse,
And women cry with triumph now,
"We'll sweep the universe!"

Medbury Says Lloyd George Quit When There Was No More Money to Borrow

LLOYD GEORGE has resigned as premier with the British government after putting seven hard years borrow money from this country.

He quit his job when there was nothing more left for him to borrow.

He was Prime Minister to Great Britain and he sure borrowed a lot of money while he was in his place.

He has turned over his office to a successor after giving him the road maps of Washington and the address of the good banks in town.

This new Prime Minister will come to America shortly and see if he can't find anything that Lloyd George forgot.

England was very much in debt when they hired us, but we have heard rumors that he has left a dollar in our treasury.

But this is nothing against Lloyd George, no one of all great men are a present at times.

He would probably have taken it the last time he was over here but he didn't figure he was going to quit so soon.

England will no doubt, pay us back our money very soon as it is now in sister will have something to come over and borrow.

It is alleged that Lloyd George's successor was out once in the company of Tracy Jones so he ought to know how to get the money.

He ought to be able to get all the money he wants over here because he went a United States soldier during the World War.

England borrows a lot of dough from us to pay for Prime Minister a large salary to come over and borrow more dough.

LLOYD GEORGE got a straight salary but the new bird may want to work on commission.

We could save England a Prime Minister a lot of traveling expenses by having our currency printed over in Europe.

This new fellow is just the man for the job he's got. He doesn't get seasick.

He'll take Back to Europe all he can though we've got, providing we pay the excess baggage.

Before he borrows any money from us he'll take Secretary of the Treasury Mellon out to lunch and then shake dice with him to see who pays for the meal.

This Prime Minister may not have enough dough on him to pay for the meal, but he's a pretty good business man and will probably borrow the money from Mellon before lunch.

England banked on America during the war and they're still banking on us.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

I'M LIVING in a modern flat where things are up to date, the hall in which I hang my hat is four feet-two by eight. It's queer, when all is said and done, although the price is steep we sit inside to get the sun and go out doors to sleep. The living room is extra large and it is wife's best bet, and yet, with all the rent they charge, there's just a kitchenette.
Oh, we have baths with cold and hot we've shelves for many a book and there's a pretty garden spot, but not much place to cook. Now,
I was raised in Beanville Pass, where cooking stars is in style, and Mother's pies and apple sass could make a hoot owl smile. As memory revives those eats that banished every fret, I'm sure Ma could not do such feats in any kitchenette. The turkeys Mother baked there in that old cast iron range would cause an architect to swear, for all his plans they'd change.
He'd need a stove of stately size with space to park the same, while pots and pans for cakes and pies would put these shelves to shame.
The food my kitchenette turns out is strictly light as air. No chap would ever get the gout from meals concocted there. A few sips of bread, a wisp of meat, a touch of caviar, a dainty dab of something sweet, and that's the bill of fare! This modern flat has lots of class in sundry pleasing ways, but still I dream of apple sass on extra hungry days. The scent of Mother's fat mince pie I never quite forget and so I'd gladly say good bye to every kitchenette.

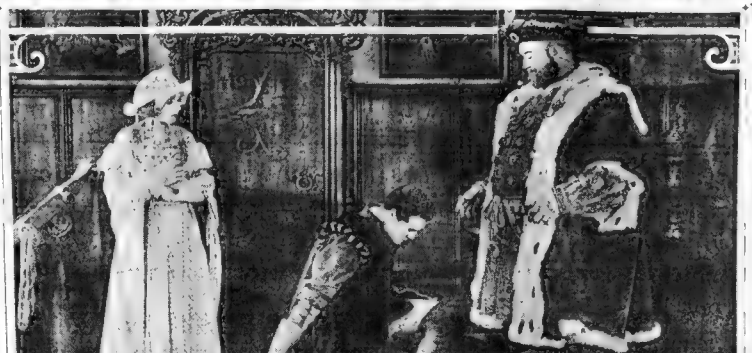
World-Famous Story of the All-Conquering Power of Love Over the Heart of the Wilful and Beautiful Sister of the Autocratic King Henry VIII.

By Charles Major



"Justice, oh king!" cried Caskoden, on learning of Brandon's plight

BUCKINGHAM had hoped to induce [illegible] to marry London [illegible] by representing to [illegible] requirements of [illegible] citizen and the [illegible] grow out of his [illegible] lied on Brandon [illegible] help him out by [illegible] the note when Mary [illegible] delivered to the keeper at Newgate, he read it and all his plans were changed.

He cursed [illegible] and the note to the [illegible] the fact that he, Buckingham, had any knowledge of it. The duke then at once [illegible] where he arrived and sought the king a few minutes before the time he knew the messenger with Mary's note would [illegible] was soon found and Buckingham, in apparent anger, told him that the city authorities refused to deliver Brandon except upon an order under the king's seal.

Henry and Buckingham were intensely indignant at the conduct of the scurvy burghers, and an immense amount of self-importance was displayed [illegible] wasted. Then [illegible] station was at his highest [illegible] the messenger from Newgate arrived with Mary's poor little note as intended by the duke.

The note was handed to Henry, who read aloud as follows:

"To Master Charles [illegible]

"Greetings—Soon [illegible] liberty, pull apart [illegible] hand. Surely no. If I [illegible] you long in prison. I go to Windsor at once, there to live in the hope that I may see you speedily.

MARY."

"What is this?" cried Henry, "My sister writing to Brandon? God's death! My Lord of Buckingham, the [illegible] you were passed in my ear may have some truth. We will let this fellow remain in Newgate and [illegible] good people of London to take their own course with him."

Buckingham went to Windsor next day and told Mary that arrangements had been made for the night before for Brandon's escape, and that he had heard that Brandon had left for New Spain.

Mary looked [illegible] but had no [illegible] for any one. Her supply was [illegible]

She remained at Windsor pleading how for the sake of the very pain it brought her, and dreading the battle for more than life itself when she knew she should soon be called upon to [illegible]

At times she would fall into one of her old fits of anger because Brandon had not come to see her before he left, but soon the anger would [illegible] and the tears brought a sort of joy when she thought that he had run away from her because he loved her. After Brandon's defence of her in Billingsgate, Mary had begun to see the whole situation differently, and everything was changed. She still saw the same great distance between them as before, but with this difference, she was looking up now. Before that event he had been plain Charles Brandon and she was Princess Mary. She was the princess still, but he was a demi-god. No mere mortal, thought she, could be so brave and strong and generous and wise; and above all, no mere mortal could vanquish odds of four to one. In the night she would lie on Jane's arm and [illegible] sobs, would [illegible] talk of her lover, and praise [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] pathetic little [illegible] over and over again into Jane's receptive ear and warm, responsive heart, and was answered with a soft little kiss that would have consoled Niobe herself. Then Mary would [illegible] the doors of her life, at the ripe age of [illegible] would closed forever and forever, and that her few remaining years would be but years of waiting for the end. At other times she would brighten, and repeat what Brandon had told her about New Spain; how fortune's door was open there to those who chose to come, and how he, the best and bravest of them all, would surely win glory and fortune, and then return to buy her from her brother Henry with millions of pounds of yellow gold. Ah, she would wait! She would wait! Like Bajard she placed her ransom at a high figure, and honestly thought herself worth it. And so she was—to Brandon, or rather had been. But at this particular time the market was down, as you will shortly [illegible]

So Mary reamined at Windsor and grieved and wept and dreamed and longed that she might see across the miles of billowy ocean to her love! her love! her love! Meanwhile Brandon had his trial in secret down in London, and had been condemned to be hanged, drawn and quartered for having saved to her more than life itself.

Put not your trust in princesses!

Such was the state of affairs when I returned from France.

How I hated myself because I had not faced the king's displeasure and had not refused to go until Brandon was safely out of his trouble. It was hard for me to believe that I had left such a matter to two foolish girls, one of them a [illegible] as the wind, and the other completely under her control. I could but think of the different [illegible] myself and Brandon, and well knew, had I been in his place, he would have liberated me or stormed the very walls of London single-handed and alone.

When I learned that Brandon had been in that dungeon all that long month, I felt that it would surely kill him, and my self-accusation was so strong and bitter, and my mental pain so great, that I resolved if my friend died, either by disease contracted in the dungeon or by execution of his sentence, that I would kill myself. But this is a matter much easier sincerely to resolve upon than to execute [illegible] the time comes.

Next to myself, I condemned those wretched girls for leaving Brandon to perish—Brandon, to whom they both owed so much. Their selfishness turned me against all womankind.

I did not daily this time. I trusted to no Lady Jane nor Lady Mary. I determined to go to the king at once and tell him all. I did not care if the wretched Mary and Jane both had to marry the French king, or the devil himself. I did not care if they and all the host of their perfidious sisterhood went to the nether side of the universe, there to remain forever. I would retrieve my fault, in so far as it was retrievable, and save Brandon, who was worth them all put together. I would [illegible] and Jane what I thought of them, and that should end matters between us. I [illegible] them not only because of their treatment of Brandon, but because they had made me guilty of a grievous fault, for which I should never, so long as I lived, forgive myself. I determined to go to the king at [illegible] five minutes of the time I heard that Brandon was set in [illegible]

I found the king sitting alone at public dinner, and, of course, was denied speech with him. I was in no humor to be balked, so I thrust aside the guards and, much to everybody's fright, for I was wild with grief rage and despair, and knew I was [illegible] ture rushed to the king and fell upon his knees at his feet.

"Justice, O King!" I cried, and all the courtiers heard. "Justice, O King for the most [illegible] and the bravest, truest soul that ever lived and suffered." Here the tears began to stream down my face and my voice choked in my throat. "Charles Brandon, your majesty's one-time friend, lies in a loathsome, rayless dungeon, condemned to death as your majesty may know, for the killing of two men in Billingsgate Ward. I will tell you all. I should be thrust out from the society of decent men for not having told you before I left for France, but I trusted it to another who has proved false. I will tell you all. Your sister, the Lady Mary, and Lady Jane Bolingbroke were returning alone, after dark, from a visit to the soothsayer Grouche, of whom your majesty has heard. I had been notified of the Lady Mary's intended visit to him, although she had enjoined absolute secrecy upon my informant. I could not go, being detained upon your majesty's service—it was the night of the ball to the ambassadors—and I asked Brandon to follow them, which he did, without the knowledge of the princess. Upon returning, the ladies were attacked by four ruffians, and would have met with worse than death had not the bravest heart and the best sword in England defended them yesterday against such fearful odds. He left them at Bridewell without hurt or injury, though covered with wounds himself. This man is condemned to be hanged, drawn and quartered, but I know not your majesty's heart if he be not at once [illegible] and richly rewarded. Think, my king! He saved the royal honor of your sister, who is so dear to you, and has suffered so terribly for his loyalty and bravery. The day I left so hurriedly for France the Lady Mary promised she would tell you all and liberate this man who had so nobly served her, but she is a woman, and was born to betray."

The King laughed a little at my vehemence.

"What is this you are telling me, Sir Edwin? I know of Brandon's death sentence, but much as I regret it, I cannot interfere with the justice of our good people of London for the murder of two knights in their streets. If Brandon committed such a crime, and I understand he does not deny it I cannot help him, however much I should like to do so. But this nonsense about my sister! It cannot be true. It must be trumped up out of your love in order to save your friend. Have a care, good master, how you say such thing. If it were true would not Brandon have told it at his trial?"

"It is as true as that God lives, my King! If the Lady Mary and Lady Jane do not bear me out in every word I have said, let my life pay the forfeit. He would not tell of the great reason for killing the men, fearing to compromise, the honor of those whom he had saved, for, as your majesty is aware, persons sometimes go to Grouche's for purposes other than to listen to his soothsayings. Not in this case, God knows, but there are slanderous tongues, and Brandon was willing to die with closed lips, rather than set them wagging against one so dear to you. It seems that these ladies, who owe so much to him are also willing that he should die rather than themselves bear the consequences of their own folly.

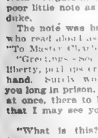
When a Girl Marries—By Ann Lisle

"SURELY you do not put yourself in the class with Mrs. Harrison?" questioned Rosa [illegible] plausible [illegible] [illegible] every thing else, by [illegible] you say rule of three. I tell you [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] to make it clear to you how I do with that last hand. It is [illegible] for you to play the game like I do



"I TELL YOU, WHITE LILAC, IT IS NOT FOR YOU TO PLAY THE GAME LIKE I DO"

"With Jaime I am a wonderful partner. We read the signal from the one to the other so perfectly it is almost as if we all were [illegible] the table the hand. But like us you would never play. You should not try. If you try—I think you get yourself always with too big a contract on your hands. And you give big penalty. You [illegible] maybe more than you can afford [illegible] advise you for your own good."

Her smile as she said it was flashingly sweet. I [illegible] deceived even such clever [illegible] Virginia and Pat. But I felt that I received a warning. I knew that Rosa gloried in the [illegible] that I was a plodding, amateur player of the game in which Jaime she was a wonderful partner."

At that moment I determined to learn as much about bridge—and other games of finesse—as an earnest will could enable me to absorb.

Aloud, I said lightly and before any one else had a chance to comment:

"Your deal, isn't it, Jeanie? I've never given enough [illegible] this game. But I promise [illegible] some day with Jim for a partner I can give you your choice of the field of other men—and win, Mrs Cordova."

Rosa turned to Pat with a gay exclamation. But I felt the barb behind her word.

"Isn't she the—how you say—conceited minx? Maybe, Patrick, I get you to help me sometime and we show her how pride rides for a fall."

Our evening of bridge left me with a sense of having seen Rosa Cordova under a microscope. Perhaps I always realized that she is a brilliant gambler and a reckless one, too. But I'm sure I'd not appreciate how logical she is, and how much sane reasoning there is back of her every move. I know now that at her most daring plunges in the dangerous realms are thought out carefully on a basis of sizing up people and things.

I'm sure she has been and can be of great aid to Jim. But I also know that if I have to thank her for his ultimate success, I shall have a hard time to keep from wishing it had been a failure. I have to confess that I respect Rosa Cordova a mind that I understand her charm and that—I dislike her to the point of actual hatred.

Sunday brought about a number of strange situations in our "camp." We were still at the breakfast table when I was called to the telephone. As I guessed, Mr Lacy was on the wire. After an exchange of greetings, he burst out bluntly:

"In a thousand years, you'll never guess where I am! So I won't make you try. But I'll keep you guessing, so you'll have something to do to let me come over and see you this afternoon, May I?"

"Of course," I agreed. "I'll be glad to see you. This will be to greet my husband's sister, Mrs Dalton, and her very charming husband."

"May I bring Park along?" asked Mr. Lacy. "Bring him, by all means." I cried "And as I was once his hostess then, I'll invite you both to stay for tea."

"Really? Will it be all right for us to do that?" cried Mr. Lacy. "Sunday evenings are terrifically lonely for bachelors."

"This one shan't be," I promised.

Then we arranged for Mr. Lacy to drive over at four-thirty so we could have a couple of hours for business. After our good-bye, I hurried back to the breakfast room, where I promptly said to Virginia:

"I've just proved how thoroughly at home I am here, and how completely I believe in your hospitality. My telephone call was from Mr. Lacy, the advertising manager of the Star. He is the kindest of business advisers and a good friend as well. He and his chum, Wayne Parkinson, are driving over on business at four-thirty and"——

"And you were a sweet, hospitable creature and asked them to tea," concluded Virginia with her most gracious smile. "If you had done anything else, Anna, I'd have commissioned Pat to spank his Alanna."

Her words were so whimsical and chummy that they gave me a warming sense of being closer to Virginia than I'd ever come in all my precious life. [illegible] were I could say something to convey my feeling of "purry" satisfaction, Rosa broke in with a jure of her own, but this wasn't a kitty-in the-sunlight affair. Instead it had an effect of claws just sheathed.

"So my friend Park comes again! I know that with him you had made—chums. So I suppose he come to see you, not me Shall I then take your very good friend Lacy off your hands?"

"Have you met Mr. Lacy?" asked Virginia, with an evident determination to make everything happy

A SLEEVELESS "COVER ALL" APRON

4099. Unbleached muslin with dots stitching is red or blue would be nice for this serviceable model. One may use gingham, percale, crepe or drill. Linen or chint is also desirable. The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: Small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A medium size requires 4½ yards of 32-inch material.

A COMFORTABLE PROTECTIVE APRON

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: Small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A medium size requires 4½ yards of 36-inch material.

A NEW AND SIMPLE "DRAPED" STYLE

4176. Long and graceful lines mark this style, and the new leg o' mutton sleeve is an outstanding feature. This design is fine for the new crepe weaves, and for crepe de chine. It will also lend itself well to velvet, and kasha.

The pattern is cut in six sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires 6¼ yards of 40-inch material. The width at the foot is 2½ yards.

CHILD'S COAT AND CAP

Pattern 3743 is here illustrated. It is cut in four sizes: Six months, 1 year, 2 and 4 years. A two-year size will require 2½ yards of 27-inch material for the coat and ⅝ yard for the cap.

Velvet, corduroy, serge, Bedford cord, silk, gabardine and broadcloth are appropriate.

A PRETTY FROCK FOR THE LITTLE TOT

4171. One could use voile, crepe or nainsook for this model. Gingham and percale are also attractive. The sleeve may be in wrist or elbow length.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 1, 2, 4 and 5 years. A 2-year size requires 2¾ yards of 32-inch material.

A POPULAR MODEL

4177. Coat dress styles have been "rediscovered"—and are shown this season in many attractive versions. The design here portrayed has very simple lines, and is easy to develop. It is good for velvyne, kasha, broadcloth or velvet.

The pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires 6⅝ yards of 40-inch material. The width at the foot is 2¼ yards.

A PLEASING FROCK FOR MOTHER'S GIRL

4116. Plaid suiting with bandings of taffeta was used for this design. It is nice for the new jersey weaves, for serge and silk and is also a style good for wash fabrics.

The pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: 4, 6, 8, and 10 years. A 6-year size requires 3¼ yards of 32-inch material. For jumper alone 1⅜ yard of 32-inch material is required.

A PLEASING MODEL

4150. This pretty frock may be made without the jumper portions. It is a good style for gabardine, serge, taffeta, or linen, and also for gingham and other wash fabrics.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. A 6-year size requires 3¼ yards of 32-inch material. For jumper alone 1⅜ yard of 32-inch material is required.

MAN AND MAID, by Elinor Glyn

By Elinor Glyn

"HERE after three days you are trying to break out, and are insinuating that the circumstances are too horrible for you to continue bearing it. Surely your reason and common sense must tell you that your behavior is ridiculous."

The same agitation which always shows when we talk thus overcome her again. She did not speak.

"I could understand it better if you were a hysterical character. You did not seem to be so, but now no ridiculous school miss of romance could be more given to the vapors. You will absolutely destroy the remaining respect I have for you, unless you tell me the truth, and what is underneath in your mind influencing you to behave so childishly."

This stung her to the quick, as I had meant that it should. She bounded up.

"Well—I will then. I hate being in the house—with your mistress!"

She was trembling all over, and as white as marble. I leaned back and laughed softly. My boy was so immense I could not help it.

"To begin with, I have no mistress, but if I had how can it possibly matter to you, since you hate me, and yourself arranged to be only my secretary?"

"You have a mistress!" I could see she thought I was lying ignobly.

"I had one, as of course you know, but the moment I began to think that you might be an agreeable companion I parted from her at the time when you saw the counterfoils in the cheque-book, and changed to me from that moment."

"Then—!" she still looked incredulous.

"She has a cousin living in the flat above, married to an anticaire. She comes to see her. You have no doubt met on the stairs. And on our wedding day she came here, not knowing, to thank me for a wife. I had given her at Monte Carlo as a good-bye present. I am very angry that she intruded, and it shall never happen again."

"Is that true?" She was breathless.

That made me angry.

"I am not in the habit of lying," I said haughtily.

"Mademoiselle is Blonde," and her lips curled. "She came in while you were at St. Malo. She inferred you had not parted then."

"That was because she was jealous, and is very temperamental. I had thought that quality was confined to her sex."

I, too, can hit hard when I am insulted!

Alathea flashed at me. She was beginning to realise that she was at a disadvantage.

"You are not unutterably shocked that I should have a friend, are you?"

Her face grew contemptuous.

"No, my father had one. Men are all beasts."

"They may be in the abstract, but are not when they can find a woman worth love and respect."

She shrugged her shoulders.

"My mother is an angel."

"Now that your mind is at rest as to this question, have you any other cause of complaint against me? Though why it should matter to you what I do or don't do in this respect, as long as I am courteous to you, and fulfill my side of the bargain, I cannot think. One could imagine you were jealous!"

"Jealous!" she flared furiously. "Jealous, I! How ridiculous. One has to care to be jealous!" and then she flounced out of the room.

Yes, even when they appear all that is balanced, there is nothing so amazing as a woman!

Sunday:

I slept last night soundly for some strange reason, and woke quite late on Sunday morning.

One frequently has some sense of depression or some sense of exhilation before one is quite conscious, and quite often cannot account for either state. Personally Alathea had left me full of contemptuous indifference, but I awoke with a feeling of joy and satisfaction, which gradually changed to flatness when I became fully aware of things.

For indeed what reason had I for great rejoicing? None, except that the menace of the Susette bogie may be lifted.

I rang for Burton. It was nine o'clock.

"Has her ladyship breakfasted yet, Burton?"

"Her ladyship breakfasted at eight, and left the house at half-past, Sir Nicholas."

My heart sank. So I was going to have a lonely morning. She had said she wanted to go to her mother. I remembered now. I did not hurry to get up. The doctors were coming with the wonderful artist who is making my new foot at twelve o'clock and I am to have it on today for the first time. This would be a surprise for Alathea when she returned to lunch. I read my journal in bed, and thought over the whole of our acquaintance. Yes, certainly she has greatly changed in the last six weeks. And possibly I am nearer my goal than I could have dared to hope.

Now my method must be to be sweet to her, and not tease her any more.

How wonderful it will be when she does love me. I have not thought much about my own feelings lately, she has kept me so often irritated and angry, but I know that there is a steady advance, and that I love her more than ever.

"None better, sir—none better," was the encouraging reply. "I have been advised to settle in a place where there is a south wind. Does it blow much here?" "Oh, ay," was the answer, "it's aye the sooth wind that blaws here." "But it's blowing from the north now." "Oh, ay, sir, it's all one. It's the sooth wind, sir, coming back."

Anaconda, Chino and Utah Set New Lows for 1922 in Generally Heavy Market

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Detroit so greatly impressed me on my visit last week that here I am again.

Detroit strikes me as being a second Chicago, growing, hustling, energetic, enterprising, buoyant, youthful city, its people all forward looking.

A speech I made here last week apparently has been very widely quoted and somewhat misunderstood.

I laid great stress upon the importance of refraining from boosting prices one dollar or one cent more than absolutely necessary to yield a living wage on capital invested.

But I am told that this has been interpreted — misinterpreted — as meaning that I look for lower prices and that it has had a wholly unintended influence on some prospective buyers.

I do not look for a lower price level. I would like to see prices of manufactured goods held down as near as feasible to current levels and the prices of most agricultural products marked up appreciably.

But I rather fear that we are going to witness a good deal of price re-sing for finished goods.

For example, cotton enters into the manufacture of a very wide variety of articles not classed as textiles—automobile tires, for instance. As we all know, cotton has advanced more than 25 per cent.

Crude rubber has risen almost 100 per cent. from its recent minimum.

Hides are up more than 100 per cent. from the low points.

And various other basic raw materials have also been rising more or less sharply in price.

So, too, have iron and steel products, which enter so heavily into the production of an endless number of finished goods.

Tin and lead likewise have been moved up.

The wage trend, moreover, has lately turned upward—another important factor in gauging the probable course of the general price level.

It is because there is and will be so much temptation to advance prices that I have been exhorting business men everywhere to handle the price situation with extreme care and the utmost restraint.

It surely should have been obvious that if I were looking for lower prices it would have been superfluous and foolish for me to sound repeated solemn warnings against price-boosting.

Replies to Investors

Queries of interest to investors will be answered in this column or by mail. Send questions, with stamped, self-addressed envelope, to Frank H. Melcon, Financial Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

To J. G., Congress street—Recently the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, as trustee of issue, asked for offers of sufficient Anaconda Copper Mining Company, series A, 6 per cent., Serles B, 7 per cent., 1929, bonds to exhaust $750,040 accumulated in sinking fund. It offered to pay prices that would return not less than 6 per cent for the rest of the bond's life.

Miller Rubber Company.

To D. C., Canton—The Miller Rubber Company declared regular quarterly dividend of $2 on preferred stock and a dividend of $1 a share on account of accumulations, dividend payable September 15. This left company still owing $11 a share on preferred.

Sales for first six months amounted to $12,119,741, against $9,445,822 in the same period, 1921, approximately 28 per cent. increase in money and 100 per cent. in units. Net profits were $1,026,317 after all charges. Company has established new production records during year to date.

Pan-Handle Lease.

To R. W. S., Springfield.—A bill in equity was filed in United States District Court at Philadelphia by Continental Insurance Co. of New York, of which Henry Evans is president, seeking to restrain the 999-year lease of the Pan-Handle road to the Pennsylvania Railroad.

STOCK PRIVILEGES

Many profit opportunities exist in present market. Send for free copy

ROBERTS & CO. 50 Broad Street New York.

GOODRICH FALLS TO LOWEST FOR YEAR

After occasional exhibitions of strength, stocks in the New York market weakened under the lifting of call money rates from 5 to 6 per cent. and the general list weakened lower. There was a rally in the last half hour.

In the coppers Anaconda, Chino and Utah were off to new bottoms for 1922. Goodrich also fell to its lowest for the year.

May Department Stores lifted more than 10 points on top of its 8½ point gain at Tuesday's close. Stock dividend talk in this issue has been denied.

U. S. Steel yielded more than a point at its lowest, reflecting disappointment that common dividends were not earned in the year's third quarter.

Mex Pete at its lowest was off more than 4 and the Pan-Americans 2¾ and 3¾.

American Can was up around 4 points on strength of its high earnings. Standard Oil of New Jersey lifted around 3.

National Biscuit dropped 4⅞, at 225½. American Radiator and Vanadium yielded over 3, and Fisher Body around 5.

CONSOLIDATED STOCK BROKERS SUSPENDED

Consolidated Stock Exchange has announced suspension of L. J. Fitzgerald & Co., No. 67 Exchange place, New York, for insolvency. Partners are L. J. Fitzgerald and N. A. Evalenko. Firm was admitted to the Exchange Sept. 21, 1921.

40 P. C. BONUS ON SANITARY STOCK

Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company of Pittsburgh has declared a 40 per cent. stock dividend and 3 per cent. extra cash dividend on common, in addition to regular 2 per cent. quarterly dividend.

Wall St. Gossip

PIERCE-ARROW deficit for nine months ended September was $339,969, against $2,109,899 for the same 1921 period.

DIVIDEND declarations often depend on who has the stock, Insiders or the public.

WALL STREET'S big wonder is how rapidly operators can shift from optimism to pessimism, after unloading for profit. "Nix bear like a sold-out bull," runs the old saying.

MEXICAN PETE is going ahead with drilling of ten wells in Juan Felipe under its newly-acquired oil rights in Mexico.

BEARISH SIGNIFICANCE are coming out on tobaccos, following price reductions. Some think Lorillard & Myers, American Tobacco and R. J. Reynolds can't continue to make money under new figures.

PUBLIC UTILITIES are expected to be dull until after election, when it will be safer to resume talk of extra disbursements in the way of raised dividends or stock bonuses.

TEXAS PACIFIC Coal & Oil completed its Newberry No. 2 well in Garvin County, Okla., with initial production estimated at 1,800 barrels.

WHITE EAGLE OIL & Refining Company has completed Burkett No. 1 well in Greenwood county, Kansas, producing 500 barrels initial.

UTAH COAL production in September showed substantial increase over corresponding months since 1919. September, 1922, estimate is 480,250 tons, compared with 459,320 tons last year.

AMERICAN METAL COMPANY for quarter ended September 30 showed gross income $850,723 after Federal taxes and depreciation, expenses were $140,154, leaving net $710,569.

MAMMOTH OIL COMPANY'S well in Teapot Dome has come in with flush production of 2,000 to 2,500 barrels in second well creek sand.

CALLAHAN ZINC & Lead Company will resume operations in its mill in the Coeur d'Alenes at once.

NATIONAL SURETY COMPANY stockholders have voted to increase stock by 20,00 shares at subscription price to shareholders of $15.00. This will give company $7,000,000 capital and surplus of over $7,500,000.

PRINCE & WHITELY—High grade stocks should be purchased around current levels, as fundamental conditions are bullish and will prevail in the long run.

HALLE & STIEGLITZ — Reading has had enough of a reaction to warrant its purchase at present prices.

Literary Test for Citizenship

Some time ago John F. Fitzgerald, Democratic candidate for Governor, related a story of his early political life. When he was a very young man he served as the only Democratic Congressmen from New England. During that period when the immigration bill containing the literacy test was before Congress, Mr. Fitzgerald said that he advised President Cleveland that public sentiment in Massachusetts was against the bill. He says that later, when talking in the Senate lobby with a Senator, Senator Lodge approached him and called him a "fresh young man" for having advised the President that the sentiment of Massachusetts was against such a bill.

Lodge, in the course of his statement to Fitzgerald at that time asserted:

I never, in all the long discussions about the restrictions of immigration, ever suggested that there should be any restriction aimed at any particular race or creed.

Since Mr. Fitzgerald published an account of this allocation Lodge has denied it in toto and has denied that he ever favored the immigration bill which put a literacy test as a qualification for entering into America. To this Mr. Fitzgerald replied. The reply has been in the news columns, but it is so good we want to repeat it as an editorial comment:

Mr. Lodge spoke for the anti-immigration bill on March 16, 1896, and the Congressional Record of that day shows that he not only denounced the Italians and Russian immigrants, the latter of whom were principally Jews, but the Poles, Hungarians and Greeks, as well. He declared that the people of those races who were unable to read and write made up "the slum population, with criminals, paupers and juvenile delinquents of foreign birth," and he expressed the hope that we, whose fathers had arrived a few ships earlier, would shut the door against them, "as the door was closed against the coming of the Chinese."

The following are the exact words of Mr. Lodge, taken from the Congressional Record of that day:

It is found in the first place that the illiteracy test will bear most heavily upon the Italians, Russians, Poles, Hungarians, Greeks and Asiatics, and very lightly, or not at all, upon English-speaking immigrants. In other words, the races most affected by the illiteracy test are those whose emigration to this country has begun within the last twenty years and swelled rapidly to enormous proportions, races with which the English-speaking people have never hitherto assimilated, and who are most alien to the great body of people of the United States.

When you begin, he continued, to pour in unlimited numbers people of alien or lower races, of less social efficiency, less moral force, you are running the most frightful risk any people can run. I trust that the unerring instinct of the race will shut the danger out as it closed the door upon the coming of the Chinese.

Senator Lodge and his friends are making a determined effort to get our Jewish citizens to vote for him because as a member of the Senate he voted to favor the establishment in Palestine of a permanent home for the Jews. Who did not? There was no contest. Its righteousness was so plain that no one would think of opposing it. Mr. Lodge sacrificed nothing by approving it. Indeed the sacrifice would have been in not of approving it.

But he voted to keep the poor ignorant Jew out of America, because the tyranny of his own country made him almost a slave and gave him no education.

Rats Must Go

Concentrate on That

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Rats breed disease, carry it, contaminate human food with it. Two hundred million rats in the United States destroy five hundred million dollars' worth of property a year, as much as could be earned by two hundred thousand men on the average—so says "Thrift Magazine."

On one Georgia plantation of four hundred acres, seventeen thousand rats were killed in one Winter. Human ingenuity should wipe out rats entirely by giving them some rat plague that would make one rat infect and destroy the other.

That would be no more than just, considering that they have given Europe and America the Asiatic plagues for centuries.

If you have an inventive mind, concentrate on the problem, "How to Get Rid of Rats PERMANENTLY." It has got to be done some day—and all over the country at once and systematically.

Congress will spend $4,500 to drive mice, rats, croton bugs and other insects out of the Capitol. They will be driven out, then they will come back. Congress ought to make a REAL fight against destructive pests. Money thrown away by this country building wooden ships, or trying unsuccessfully to build flying machines for the war, would rid the nation of malaria and yellow fever by killing off the mosquitoes, save big interest on the investment by stopping the damage done by rats and mice, add billions to the value of real estate and peace to human life.

But a nation always ready with money to fight another nation rarely has money to fight its real enemies in peace.

Middle Class Revolution

Some Foolishness Here

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

The Fascisti are a new kind of revolutionary body starting a revolution in the MIDDLE of the social pile instead of at the top or bottom.

The revolution at the top, one individual seizing power, is called the coup d'etat, which succeeds quite often.

The revolution at the bottom everybody knows. It worked particularly well in France. The middle class, bourgeois, revolution is entirely new and it seems to be working just as Morris Hillquit said it would work, when he returned recently from Italy. The Fascisti revolutionists, it seems, intend to set aside other parties and run the Italian kingdom, and apparently will do it.

Mr. Weeks, Secretary of War, says "the nation is drifting toward unpreparedness." Why not go further and say the nation is UNPREPARED? It lacks SUBMARINES, lacks FLYING MACHINES, and TRAINED MEN for both!

It spent a billion in war for flying machines, and got nothing. It spent six hundred millions for wooden boats that it cannot now give away. It squandered millions upon millions trying to get, in a hurry, what it should have prepared slowly. And it will probably do the same thing over again.

Everybody's Doing It

By Dr. Charles Fleischer.

It is not long since the "latest" song proclaimed that "everybody's doing it."

Song or no song, that is the singsong fact about us human beings anyhow and always. Especially in our beloved America. Everybody's doing it—because everybody's doing it.

The son of the late Count Tolstoy—himself a Count Tolstoy (though counts no longer count in Russia)—is living in America and is a friendly critic of things American.

He tells the story of a rather impudent young Yankee, who asked him why he didn't shave his whiskers. The count countered the query: "Why do you shave yours?"

Evidently the question surprised the youth, for he stammered the reply: "Why? Because everybody does it!"

"Have you any other reason?" Tolstoy asked.

"No; I don't think so," the young man admitted.

One needs not be very old to recall the beginning of the modern fad of smooth-shaven men. But now the fad has become a custom, sanctioned by sanitary science and glorified by moralists and philosophers.

Indeed, excepting only the silly-brave exception of the Charlie Chaplin variety of apologetic lip-covering, the man must apologize who still insists upon the privilege of hirsute adornment.

If you wear a beard you must be covering an unmanly jaw, and if a moustache sprawls over your lip it must be that you fear its telltale revelation of weakness.

In one of his essays, Ralph Waldo Emerson charges society with being in a conspiracy against the integrity of its members.

That is, all of us are trying to make each of us like the rest of us.

True enough—and sad enough. But also true and sadder still that each of us is so ready and eager to prove the Darwinian theory by aping the fashion—whether it is the style of face or speech or dress or belief or pretense.

The fact that "everybody's doing it" is reason enough for your doing it, however obviously stupid, timid, foolish, ugly, or even wrong it may be.

Out upon you! Be brave! Make the Declaration of Independence a personal experience and continuous performance!

It may be that You can make "everybody" do what you are doing. In any case, you have the joy and self-respect of being YOURSELF.

School Book Propaganda

Editor Boston American:

As an American of Irish descent, as I presume the superintendent of schools, Burke, is, I agree most heartily with Miss M. Cosgrove in saying Burke should be ousted from his position, as a person not fit for such an important place, owing to his downright neglect as an American for allowing the English agent to introduce their treacherous propaganda books into the schools. If we allow this man to get away with such a gross breach of American principles how can we ever hold on to the teachings of the founders of this Republic?

Winthrop Welfare League

Editor Boston American:

On September 15, 1922, there was organized in the town of Winthrop by the writer with the assistance of two associates, an organization known as the Winthrop Welfare League, and during the space of a few hours no fewer than 120 members were enrolled. The main object of this league is to assist members of the Jewish community to become citizens in Winthrop, and to give free instruction in reading and writing to those unable to read and write so that they are eligible to take out naturalization papers. A mass meeting of the organization was held on Sunday, Oct. 22, 1922. Inadvertently a report was circulated to the effect that the Winthrop Welfare League was launching a campaign to oppose the activities of the Ku Klux Klan. This report has caused great inconvenience to the officers in question, on account of undue publicity, and has been contradicted. C. L. BYRENS.

Ten Commandments

Editor Boston American:

How would it be for us to shake our outward, tangible churches with all their ritual and "he hates they create in the minds of children; hates that they carry to their graves, and substitute just the ten commandments, AND LIVE UP TO THEM? Lead honest, industrious, useful lives, and when death comes, if we can say 'the world has been a little better for our having lived,' we shall have no fear of the future.

More Old Newspapers

Editor Boston American:

I have noticed readers writing of old papers they own. I'm in line. I have an Amherst, N. H., paper called The Amherst Journal and the New Hampshire Advertiser of Saturday, October 17, 1795. One of the interesting ads is the announcement of the arrival of the brig "Peggy and Polly" from Cadiz with brandy and wine. Also at Long Wharf "40 pipes of genuine Conac brandy." Sounds wet in these dry times.

NewBank Policy in Philippines

MANILA, Oct. 31.—The "liquidation of loans" policy instituted in the Philippine National Bank by its manager, E. W. Wilson, is believed to have made an exceedingly favorable impression on United States authorities.

The policy consists of these doctrines: Go slow; get potentially good enterprises on their feet instead of forcing failures; renew loans if payments have been made; get as large payments as possible, and increase the security when practicable, working on this basis, depend upon time, good crops and good volume of exports. Control of imports is also favored. These policies, it followed, it is declared, will put the bank in a position where a change in charter will make practicable greater aid to agriculture or any other enterprise which the bank may wish to espouse and which the government, which owns it, may prefer.

He has been working along these lines since January, 1921, and when the report of Haskins and Sells made for the Wood-Forbes' mission, reached Manila and was published, in extract, in the press, during the fourteen months the report had been in preparation much improvement in the bank's position had been made. The $20,000,000 loaned on sugar plantations and mills is now, it is believed, all to be repaid, although repayment will cover several years. The cocoanut oil mill loans, which may be $15,000,000, are being tackled next.

In both cases it is reorganization, curtailment of expenses, reduced cost of operation and of manufacture, efficiency instead of careless methods and waste that "got by" during the war and the post-armistice boom. It is understood that Wilson's report, expected about January 1, will show that the bank's estimate of losses will not approach those estimated by the Wood-Forbes mission.

Governor-General Wood has reorganized the directorate of the bank, which is now in experienced American hands. The positions of some of its big customers are better each day. Of these, one is the Bank of the Philippine Islands, also in competent American hands. The reserves of this bank have been raised to a point fell above the legal requirements, and its account with the National is being reduced.

The Manila Railroad is making money and paying off its debts. It, too, is in American hands.

SEEN AND HEARI

WORD just received from Washington Chamber of Commerce shows a decided increase in orders for machinery from other countries, especially European. TOMMY CLAYTON, the Boston lightweight, has jumped from the amateurs into the professional ranks. He fought many of the best fighters in the country and defeated many of them. He won many medals and made an enviable record. CLAYTON says that he will show the fans some real fighting in the ring soon.

She was motoring cautiously in West street when apparatus came from Mason street fire house, with a policeman shunting traffic to one side. In haste she headed for a parking space by the right-hand curb. Another car nosed in ahead of her. Desperately she swung toward another open space by the opposite curb. Just too late; another machine took it. "Clang! Clang!" The fire truck's siren shrieked close behind. The policeman signaled imperiously. She shut her eyes, bowed her head down on the steering wheel and called it a day. A friendly chauffeur climbed aboard and steered her and her machine out of the way.

How is it that America has national flow—? If PRESIDENT HARDING or other notables in public life of the United States desired to sport a flower, there none set aside which would brand a man as a patriot and a servant of the people. There is at present a bill before Congress which favors the daisy as the nation blossom.

GARRETT P. SERVISS O ANOTHER UNIVERSE

By Garrett P. Serviss

ACCORDING to a new estimate of the distance of the Andromeda nebula, which can be seen rising in the northeast early in the evening at this time of the year, that wonderful object may be another universe of stars as large as our galaxy, but situated so far away that it appears to our eyes only as a small, elliptical, faintly glowing speck in the heavens, no brighter than a ninth magnitude star.

The distance computed for this object, by a new method, and published in the Astrophysical Journal by E. Opik, is no less than 450,000 parsecs. The parsec is the standard of stellar distance now generally used by astronomers, and is equal, in round numbers, to 19,000,000,000,000, i. e., nineteen million million, or nineteen trillion, miles.

Multiplying the value of one parsec by 450,000 we get the stupendous number 8,550,000,000,000,000,000 or eight quintillion five hundred and fifty quadrillion miles as the distance across the gap of space that separates us from the so-called Andromeda nebula, an object that looks lighter than the tiniest pinhole-down, but, according to Oepik's estimate, really weighs, in the aggregate, four thousand hundred million times as much as our sun, which itself is 330,000 times as heavy as the earth!

Reckoned in light-years, the distance of that other universe than ours appears even more amazing. A light-year, i. e., the distance that light travels in a year, is about 5,860,000,000,000 miles. Dividing the distance of the Andromeda nebula by this, we get about 1,459,000 as the number of light-years involved. In other words, a wave of light, the speediest thing we know, requires nearly a million and a half of years to make the passage!

That distant universe glimmering beyond the stars of what we call the constellation Andromeda, may, for all that we can tell, have been destroyed a million years before the earliest type of man appeared on this earth, and yet the last waves of light that left its expiring suns are still on their way to us in the vast space, and will not reach the earth with their closing message for thousands of years yet to come.

It is true that the Andromeda nebula is another universe of stars bearing a general resemblance to the one in the midst of which we dwell, it is logical to conclude that, in the immensity of surrounding space, there are many more such "univer And, once started, it is as d cult to fix a limit to their num as to assume that the numbe infinite.

If we do reject the idea o infinite number of such ste aggregations scattered around then, Einstein to the cont notwithstanding, we must, order to satisfy the mind, some that beyond the u which they occupy there either infinite emptiness, some other form of mat What is gained by suppos space to curve in upon its so that it has an esse "sphericity," and in theref limited? Such a hypothesis only the result of a kind of m matical reasoning which fessedly rejects physical, or sual, bases and certification.

We shall never solve the se of the physical universe by m physical methods. Like Ae medes, we have got to hav place to put our fulcrum be our lever will work. The le the fulcrum, the ground to st on and the forces applied are physical. This is a physical verse that we see around us. the Andromeda nebula is of a distant part of the same k is another, no less physical, verse. In all that immensity space not to separates it our galaxy there is not slightest indication, yet found an interruption of the phys laws that govern immedia around the earth. The li waves that have traveled e quintillions of miles tell of interference, and are strik akin to those that play over me.e step that divides the e from the sun, and which t traverse in eight minutes.

Not only the compositi the Andromeda universe, pp to be the same as that of but the events occurring i are also evidently of the s nature. In 1885 a supernova blazed out in the Androm nebula (or less probably tween it and us).

The light of that star equ the light of the whole nebula. If it is a separate universe, that one new star in it sh with a brightness as great as combined light of all its milli of permanent stars! There been many outbreaks of stars in our system, but perh none as brilliant as that. when the new star fades a the familiar features of nebula appeared unchanged. we could go there, we should new constellations, but only the traveller in foreign la meets new flowers.

PARIS SMART SET DYE PET DOGS

LONDON, Oct. 31.—A new fad of dyeing pets to match the color of a fashionable woman's frocks is said to be raging among the "beau monde" in Paris. Dogs of all colors parade the Bois on leash, carrying out the color scheme of milady's costume.

The fad is said to have been started by a New York girl, Miss Margaret Owen, who dyed her cat pale blue to match her stockings. Miss Owen's scheme, however, came quickly to grief, for the New York Humane Society had her arrested on the grounds of cruelty to her pet. It was found by investigation that the azure dye which she used contained enough arsenic to poison the cat by absorption through the pores.

The fashionable Parisiennes have improved on Miss Owen's method, according to report. Instead of ordinary dyes, likely to contain arsenic and so injure the health of their pets, they use very strong coffee and tea mixed with cream to obtain the proper shade.

With the present vogue for red, cochineal may be pres into service; while spinach gr is another comparatively ha less coloring matter. It requ the artist eye to achieve the rect result, but a judici mingling of saffron and spin green, or coffee and cochin might bring about the desire feet in fashionable shades of green and copper.

So far the fad has not reac any great heights among ultra-smart circles in London.

"It is considered smart, h ever, to have a dog matches, or at least harm izes with your gown," said dog fancier, "and during all-black year jet black Pomeranians certainly increa in value. Henna-colored d are also much fancied; so women choose their pets as t would their dress to fit in w the general color scheme.

"Novelty is in no sense thing to see a knowing inch little Maltese pom posed on fabric counter for its owner to match up her frocks with color of her pet's coat."
